In the sections of townships in Pleasant Valley of which mention is made the boring would be in hard clay, and at a great state would reduce the cost of boring, which would go here to a depth of 126 feet and is in good working order. Mr. McKay makes note of the fact that we have here in Victoria a good set of To THE EDITOR — Only yesterday I we have here in Victoria a good set of boring rods and all the material required for sinking wells of this description. It now only remains for the government to select some available point among the many which the report discloses, where a test could be made. The people of the interior are already thankful for the manner in which the disease has not yet been discovered, and, knowing this, one should begin in time and head the warning given by the first symptom of indigestion; self-denial in diet is not too high a price to pay for exemption from a life of discomfort. Plain good living, with interior are already thankful for the interest which the energetic administration of this province has taken in the matter, and are now looking eagerly forward to a realization of their hopes. The ratio of the model of the mod necessity for irrigation has long been apparent to all familiar with the stretch of country which Mr. McKay has so minutely examined, and its opening up would tend to largely assist settlement and materially aid those who have already occupied lands. With plenty of water, figuratively speaking the desert would be made to blossom like a rose. We do in about two hours.

Mr. McKay states that offers of assistance have been abundant and that, should the boring prove successful, those benefited thave in every case offered to defray the entire cost of the work, if water were struck in sufficient quantities to be useful. We have little doubt that action will be taken upon the report immediately, that one of the points mentioned by Mr. McKay will be selected and a test boring had. If this proves successful, as we have every confidence it would, it will then be in order to proceed with the work wherever it was likely to effect good. We believe it is the intention of the Government to carry out their scheme without delay. The residents of the Interior have good reason to congratulate themselves on the fact that a liberal and progressive government is in power, which is working disinterestedly for the welfare of the whole of British Columbia.

At San Miguel the first real disappointment came in shape of the announcement that the steamer would not stay long that the steamer would not stay long to the Furnas. The Furnas has, it is claimed, the most wonderful hot springs in the world. You can sit with one foot in a hot sulphur spring and have the other in hot iron, while you drink soda water from a well in front and brandy punch from another at your back. There are also several streams running through the place where boiled truct can be easily caught, and if this is all strictly true, there is no question but the Furnas has yet to be developed as a winter resort. Being compelled to miss this, we tried to drown sorrow in the native pineapples, and my impression is that I shall try to have some more sorrow to drown next time I go to the place. If the pineapples of San Miguel were any better, a man would go insane when he have in America are like grapeshot compared with these.—Cor. Boston Transcript. once the good work which it has begun. The cure for aggravated forms of the ach trouble is often begun in infancy and the diet for young children is now wisely ordered in well-regulated nurseries. Cakes, pies, puddings and confectionery are very properly conspicuous by their absence, and, not seeing the pernicious dainties, the children satisfy their healthy young appetites on simple, nutritious fare. Keeping temptation out of their sight is an argument in favor of children eating apart from the family, but it is only in large establishments that this can be done. When at the family table it is hard to refuse to give them the things they see their elders eating, but better suffer the pain of denying them than have them grow up to be victims of dyspepsia.—Good (heer.
