A few weeks ago the Rev. Noah Schenck, D D, of Brooklyn had an operation performed on his foot, inflammation set in and leath ensued. If a man be in good health, wound heals rapidly; if the blood is corrupt, it is slow to heal. Impure blood rupt, it is slow to heal. Impure blood irritates and inflames the whole system. It follows then, if the blood purifying organs are deranged-since every particle of blood courses through these organs over one hundred times an hour—in a very short time the blood poison must destroy

In the winter season Nature demands heat-making tood; in the spring she sets up a cooling process; and, to accomplish this, she ordains that the change from winter to summer shall be gradual; if her laws were never violated, this provision would be sufficient; they are violated, therefore, we must furnish her help in this pring house-cleaning time; otherwise ds of disease remain within us. Blood is made in the stomach; it is purified by the skin, lung, liver and kidneys. During a long, cold winter, the liver and kidneys are overworked; the consequence kidneys are overworked; the consequence is that in the spring these organs are prostrated; the prostration is indicated by extendly dull, heavy f. clings and a weariness, which seems to go to the bone; headaches, furred tongue, lack of appetite, itching and discolored skin, mental irritability, depression of spirits neuralgic pains, convulsions, chills and fever, "malaria."

These little irregularities of feeling are Nature's warnings; if neglected, disease may get the upper hand. If you introduce into the blood a little kidney and liver noisen, you can artificially produce the may get the upper hand. If you introduce into the blood a little kidney and liver poison, you can artificially produce the above symptoms; it follows, therefore, that to remove them, vitality must be restored to those blood purifying organs. If they cannot perform their work no emount of medicine taken for other organs can have any permanent effect in the system. my permanent effect in the system.

er-General D. H. Bruce, business manager of the Syracuse (N.Y.) Journal in 1883, found that he was not coming through but only out of condition; to the timely use of a few bottles of Warner's safe cure, however, he attributed recevery of constitutional tone, and undoubtedly warded off some chronic disorder. This preparation is not a cure-all—it claims to restore the blood particular organs to natural vitality: is not a cure-all—it claims to restore the blood-purifying organs to natural vitality; by so doing, it not only cures, but prevents blood corruption and disease. If you doubt its power, ask your friends; millions have heard of it, hundreds of thousands have used it and commend it.

The ill-feelings of spring time are cause by a more or less poisoned condition of the blood; a condition which grows worse by neglect, and finally may send one to the Reecher's Tribute to Irving. At the farewell banquet to Henry Irving, the actor, the other night, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher made a stirring oration, and told how he was taught to regard theatres as houses of the devil and actors as totally unredeemable; and now at the he forbidden fruit and see what it was ke. "I have heard Mr. Irving with elight thirteen times," he cried, "and if all theatres were such and all actors such I would recommend them to my people as means of grace. I have been a reader of Shakespeare all my life, but I never read him till I heard him. Shakespeare in literature is like carved statues in cathedrais, and the man who can touch them and make them walk and talk puts life into hearts of marble. I shall read Ophelia and see Miss Terry as long as I live. The flowers are sweet and white by the brook where she lost her life, but e passion flower that hung on the bough Beatrice was far more wondrous and of Beatrice was far more wondrous and beautiful in its fragrance than the flower that grew at the deathside. I can hardly say what I would like to say of the obligation I feel to Mr. Irving for his inimitable acting. It has touched some of the deepest chords of my life, and when he goes away in some sense I shall feel as I feel in autumn, as it is gradually growing sober, though beautiful. As the birds have left their houses and do not sing any more every day, I feel something has gone until these is a gradually growing in the air. When their houses and do not sing any more every day, I feel something has gone until there is no more singing in the air. When ne has been blown across the great sea, I shall feel and say, 'The birds have gone.'

promise to the very letter, and promptly paying every prize offered. As his publication is a permanent institution, an old-established and widely circulated journal, and he has staked his all in its success, he is fully alive to the fact that the scheme must be carried out fairly and honorably without favor or partiality to any ener.

This has been done in the past, and it will be done in the future. Within the diast two years he has, among other rewards, given out about $3000 in cash, 25 pianos, 25 organs, 500 gold watches, besides many other valuable articles too numerous to enumerate here.

No other publisher in America, if in the world, has ever paid out anything approaching this in the same manner, and few others have ever so extensively advertised.
