

A GRAND KIDNEY MEDICINE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him When Everything Else Failed.

Uxvorton, Que., March 17th, 1908. I wish to place on record, for the sake of others who may be suffering in the same way that I suffered, that no medicine I ever took did me so much good as "Fruit-a-tives" did.

I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble, with bad pain in the back. I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me any relief, and I was getting discouraged.

I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and did so—and this medicine cured me when everything else failed.

I used altogether fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset they gave me relief and I am now practically well again; no pain, no distress, and all symptoms of kidney disease have entirely left me. I am very thankful to be once more well, and I freely make this statement for the sake of others who may suffer as I did. To them, I say try "Fruit-a-tives," as they are a grand kidney medicine.

CHILD DIED FROM RAT BITE.

Ottawa, May 14—Death as the result of the bite of a rat was the sad fate of little Eugene Jambou, the nine days' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jambou, of 134 Bessier Street, yesterday morning.

The baby slept in its carriage in the same room as its parents on Friday night. Mrs. Jambou retired about one o'clock, her husband being already asleep. At two o'clock she was awakened by the sound of the baby's cries and aroused her husband.

On jumping out of bed he saw a large grey rat leap from the cradle to the floor and escape. The baby was found with its left hand covered with blood from seven bites on the side of the palm.

Medical assistance was summoned, but blood poisoning soon set in and the infant grew rapidly worse until death ensued.

THE TELEPHONE FOR TRAIN DESPATCHING.

Montreal, May 18—So successful has been the experiment of despatching trains on the Farnham branch of the Canadian Pacific by telephone that it is announced the telephone system will, this summer, be installed over the whole of the superior division, 250 miles, between White River and Fort William. Work on installing a copper wire circuit for this purpose will be commenced very shortly.

It is stated by Superintendent Murphy, of the eastern division, that the telephone despatching system is easily twice as efficacious as the old telegraph work, and that it is only a matter of time until the whole C. P. R. system adopts the telephone for train service despatching.

OPPOSED TO WAR-LIKE EXPENDITURE

British Statesman Gives His Views on the Subject of Canada's Proposed Naval Contribution.

(From the Ottawa Free Press.)

There are those who have looked askance at the Georgian Bay Canal proposition as something altogether too large, something too stupendous to be entertained seriously. On the other hand there are those who are extremely optimistic concerning the feasibility of this great engineering undertaking and what it will mean to Canada's commercial and financial interests when completed. In the van of the latter class is Sir Robert W. Perks, M. P., of England, the renowned financier, who arrived in the Capital last night to confer with the Government concerning his proposition to have the canal built by a private company in which the Dominion Government would have representation.

A TYPICAL ENGLISHMAN.

A most pleasing personality is the impression left by Sir Robert upon those who meet him. He is not an austere man, outwardly conscious of the magnitude of his great achievements, but a genial and cordial English gentleman, courteous and kindly in the extreme. A man of medium height, with a slight tendency to shaven face, save for a closely cropped growth on either side, a full portliness, hair silver grey, clean, kindly face, a musical pleasing voice of medium pitch with a refined English accent,—this is Sir Robert Perks.

THE DREADNOUGHT QUESTION.

Sir Robert is something more than a capitalist. He is a parliamentarian. In view of this fact and in view of his extraordinary astuteness which has been so repeatedly and so emphatically demonstrated his discussion of the recent Dreadnought scare in England is of exceptional interest. In conversation with the Free Press Sir Robert stated his views of the situation very fully and decisively, made a very interesting comparison of the cost of the Georgian Bay Canal, and concluded by briefly outlining his plans concerning the building of the canal.

"You ask me about the Dreadnought situation and my opinion regarding all this war-like expenditure," began Sir Robert. "Well, I might say this, that I am perfectly convinced that both in England and Germany there are three classes of the people who are absolutely opposed to war-like expenditure either on naval or military expansion.

In the first place there are the great financial and commercial interests which have everything to lose and nothing to gain by such expenditure—and still less to gain by the disturbance in the public mind caused by a war panic.

THE WORKING CLASSES.

"Secondly in both countries are the working classes. They are only too well aware that the direct effects of war come into the home of the humblest citizens in the State. They have to go forward into the front and if they do not fall they often come home with impaired constitutions. Then the emoluments and what you might call the dignities and rewards of war don't come to the working classes. It is not the private in red or the sailor who fires the gun who is mentioned in despatches, or gets the thanks of Parliament or gets a pension or a peerage.

"And what is true of the man in the ranks of the army and navy is also true of the worker in the ranks of the industrial army. His trade declines, his wages fall, taxation rises, unemployment is increased—all the results of the wasteful expenditure and the losses of war.

THE MIDDLE CLASSES.

"Then there is a third group who really are what you might call the balancing electors in Great Britain. These are the middle classes, the people who as a rule are moderate in their opinions, who are frugal in their expenditures, who belong to the professional, artistic and retired classes of the country, who have no margin of expenditure for waste or wild adventure and who view with serious concern what is sometimes called jingoism and sometimes spirited foreign policy. RECKLESS IDEALS. "All these (three groups, both in England and Germany, may be regarded as the national reserves which may be called into the field against war. But one cannot disguise the fact that the rulings of the military classes are sometimes led away by reckless and ambitious ideals, and these men unfortunately exert enormous influence in both countries.

GERMANY IS STUBBORN.

"Great Britain, through her Foreign Ministers, has for the last five years been making serious efforts to induce Germany to limit her naval construction program, but to no avail, and now a deplorable spectacle is presented to the world of two great nations spending gigantic and increasingly large sums on the invention, construction and perfecting of the most deadly machines for the destruction of life and property that the world has ever seen.

"The cost of one Dreadnought today—and we are threatened with even greater and more costly ones—is equal to one penny on the pound on the income tax of the British taxpayer. The cost of building, maintaining and manning one Dreadnought is no less than 350,000 pounds per annum, which is equal to 1,000 pounds per day. It may be well asked, how long is this insane folly to continue?

"Cannot Great Britain and Germany produce today statesmen and enlightened patriots sufficiently powerful that their parliaments and their peoples might restrain the ambitions of the war-like sections of their communities? "Then there comes the practical point for the Dominions of the British Empire—how far they ought to be drawn into this dangerous vortex.

CANADA'S POSITION.

"If I were a Canadian I should take the view that the Dominion would be best contributing to the strength of the Empire by spending what resources she can reasonably afford in opening up her ports, improving her means of communication and adding to her own commercial and financial resources, remembering always that the most powerful reserve for a nation is the accumulated wealth of the commercial resources and of the country's people.

SELF-DEFENCE FOR CANADA.

"And I should doubt greatly the wisdom from the Canadian standpoint of contributing money towards British battleships. If the shores of Canada need defence, that is an expenditure which the Dominion herself might be reasonably called upon to make.

"Of course, if Great Britain were really involved in a European conflict I have no doubt that the spirit of the people would be equal to it. But there is no conflict, and public spirit is not called upon to manifest itself.

DREADNOUGHT AND CANAL.

"Now, I might just point out that the annual cost of the Georgian Bay section from French River to North Bay—even if the Dominion had to pay every cent of the guarantee which the company asks—would be less than one-half the annual cost of one Dreadnought. You could construct the section from Lake Huron up through the French River, and erect a magnificent dock at North Bay and the annual interest of such a work including a sinking fund which would pay for the whole project in a reasonable time, would cost the Dominion less than half the cost of a Dreadnought. Can't any intelligent man say which would be best in the interests of Canada?"

THE PARTY OF PROMISE.

The Young Turks, in the latest proceedings at Constantinople, have shown that they possess the most effective section of the army. They have an unusual task before them with unusual forces to combat. They have won so far against every combination, and people will hope they will continue. Their leaders are strong men with broad men's ideas of what is good for their country. Gentlemen,—In January last, Francis Leclaire, one of the men employed by me, working in the lumber woods, had tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was, when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his hips being badly bruised and his body turned black from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to deaden the pain and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work.

NEW WIRELESS INVENTION.

Evensville, Ind., May 1.—By pressing the key of a wireless apparatus at 9 o'clock last night, Charles Williams, aged 18, caused an explosion to take place three miles away. The blast was of such strength that it shook buildings in the city.

Young Williams is the inventor of both the wireless apparatus by which the explosion was caused, and the explosive, which is a new kind of powder, the making of which is his secret. He says the new explosive is forty times as strong as dynamite and that with his apparatus he can cause an explosion as far away as Chicago. The blast that shook the city last night took only three ounces of the explosive. Williams says he has entered into negotiations with Government officials at Washington, with a view of selling his inventions.

The explosive was put in the top of an old tree, above the city, and the inventor then went back to his home and worked his wireless apparatus to cause the explosion.

WHOOPING COUGH.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKeig, of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when nine months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by W. A. WARREN, BRIDGETOWN; A. E. ATLEE, ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, and BBAR RIVER DRUG STORE.
