"Their comedy is irresistible and all their pathos pure and moving. . . . In reading them aloud there is not a page you want to skip for weariness. . . . An original humor and a very rare truthfulness are on them all, and nearly all have beauty and distinction."—Prof. G. A. Smith, in The Bookman.

"The book is destined to a great, a long-enduring, and an enviable popularity. He has many qualities—wit, humor, observation—but his distinction is his gift of temperate yet most moving pathos. In this he is unsurpassed by any living writer."—Dr. Robertson Nicoll, in the British Weekly.
