THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

AN IRISH CORRESPONDENT'S VIEWS

AN ACCOUNT OF "RED JIM"-THE GRIP OF BRITISH POWER TALL TALK IN THE PAST-AN INTERESTING OPINION.

I see by cablegrams and by the press of the United States that some parties have called some sort of a convention in Chicago the latter part of this month to discuss the state of Ireland and to take discuss the state of freignd and to take some action on the situation here. Now I wish to talk quite plainly on that undertaking, and to offernot only a specific advice, but some suggestions to Massachusetts men who may happen to be present on that occasion. If that convention is going to be dominated by highfalutin men who will indulge in highfalutin men who will indulge in wild talk against England, however sincere it may be, it will not do a solitary cent's worth of good and it may do a great deal of harm. The grip of British power on Ireland will not be relaxed because of any threats made on form cause of any threats made or fierce resolutions passed three thousand miles resolutions processed talk about dynamite or fighting England with guns or swords will result in nothing but injury to the Irish cause in my opinion at the present time. Indeed, I would not be surprised if the dyed-in the-wool Tories and Orangemen would not enjoy a little tall talk just now, and even a few dynamite conspiracies, to give them a pretext for in-sisting that Salisbury's perpetual coer-cion act should be applied to this island while they retain power.

I know something myself of tall talk in the past, talk which was meant, too, and which I did my level best to try to carry out, and which I thought then and even think yet the circumstances of the time amply justified. I know that one of the most emphatic tall talkers was Jim McDermott. I knew him quite well; we were at Eastport, Me., on THE FIRST FENIAN RAID together, and this "Red Jim" at the very time was in the employ of the British government, a circumstance which, when I came to know afterwards, explained to me clearly why the tele-grams in cipher which I sent regarding the arms which I had charge of on the schooner E. H. Pray, from Portland to Eastport, were instantly deciphered by the British officials in Portland, Boston and St. John, N.B. "Red Jim" McDermott is still in the employ of the British secret service bureau or some other such department, and of course his tribe are in embryo all the time, ready to be fully developed under favorable conditions.

The man who talks such arrant nonsense of the present time as Jim McDermott talked then, be he living in Boston, New York, Chicago, or elsewhere, is a man who should engender suspicion in the mind of anyone of common sense. Why? For the very good reason that the conditions in Ireland are very different now to what they were then. The incubus of the state rested heavily on the country; the 500,000 tenant farmers of the island were almost absolutely dependent on the will of the landlord or his agent; while to-day they are more independent of either than any other tenant farmers in the world, and they have a right to meet in public assemblages or conventions, a right which they did not then possess. Now these are palpable facts, powerful and progressive, but the Jim McDermotts of Irish history care only for the material facts which connect them with the British government secret service fund.

Somebody has sent me a marked copy of a late issue of a little blatherskite paper published in New York, which the few copies I have seen are written in bad English in which

THE FOLLOWING HIGHFALUTIN PASSAGE OCCURS:

"Now is the time to prepare; now is the time to found an Irish organization whose pronouncements will have force behind them, whose strength will command the attention of the great powers, whose influence can be felt in all the ramifications of life, and whose hand will ever be ready to strike England wherever injury can be inflicted on her. If we are in carnest we can do it; if we liberty the better. Men respect men. Years. They despise gamblers?"

If the writer of the above has not studied Jim McDermott's style I am very much mistaken. One thing is certain; he is either a fool or a knave-quite Jim's " style to a T. Le Caron, too, was quite an adept in that same sort of stuff, and probably one of the juveniles may be

The Chicago convention may be of some good if it declares to the Irish people living in Ireland that the rule of the majority should be enforced at all hazards; that neither John Redmond nor his coterie nor Tim Healy nor his should be allowed to scorn or ridicule that rule. These gentlemen have been doing so in the past. The last-named gentlemen has proved to be traitorous as much as it was possible for any man during the last general election here.

MR. HEALY AND THE REDMONITES furnished on that occasion the keen weapons with which Ireland's cause was most dangerously wounded. There is no denying that fact. The slight fringe of British electors who are genuine Home Rulers for Ireland were absolutely disgusted at the miserable quarrelling among the Irish here in Ireland. The Irish in England were disgusted, and have told me that at least thirty seats were lost in Great Britain by a few votes owing to Mr. Healy's charges at Omagh and John Redmond's and his paper's against the Catholic clergy. If the Chicago convention directs attention to these things it will do good-if it highfalutes it will become as ridiculous as an Irish faction. Let us deal with plain facts.—P. C'Neill Larkin, in Boston Re-

George Bahen, the unfortunate Georgetown College student who lost his life from injuries sustained in a football game last Thanksgiving day, has been remembered by his alma mater. A beautiful granite monument, seventeen feet high, has been erected over his grave in Richmond, Va. On each side is an inscription stating that his fatal injuries were received "in heroically upholding the blue and gray of Georgetown College on the field of athletics." Just below this inscription is a set of resolutions passed by the students of the college, and above it is an excellent picture of the dead athlete, burned in china and set in granite. The inscriptions were sug-gested by Rev. J. Havens Richards, S. J., president of the college.

At a meeting of the Galway Town Beard on August 22, M. A. Lynch, J.P., the chairman, reterred to the necessity or legislation for tenants in towns. They dare not improve their premises for f ar of an increase of rent or of ejectment. This matter had been brought under the notice of the late Government, and an effort was about to be made to meet the requirements of the town tenants. The matter, however, tell through when the Liberal Ministry went out, but now that there was a new government he proposed that as Mr. Balfour promised to bring in a Land Bill, the claims of town tenants should be brought before him, with the object of having a clause inserted in it. or else an independent bill, dealing with the grievances of residents in towns. Nelson Palmer, J.P., seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

A poor laborer named John Sheehan was evicted from his little homestead at Ballybar on Aug. 13. In the tence which encloses the plot on which Sheehan's cottage was built was an old iron gate placed there by the late Rev. P. O'Connor (tenant of the farm) as a convenient means of entrance and exit to and from his own house to the chapel at Ballybar. After the plot was fenced in, the cottage built, and Sheehan put in possession by the late board of guardians, the gate remained until J. W. Leahy, the landlord, demanded it from Sheehan, who refused to give it up. Mr. Leahy apparently laid his grievances before the vice-guardians of the Killarney Union, whose clerk communicated with Sheehan to the effect that it he did not give up the gate pro-ceedings for possession would be taken against him. This threat was carried into effect and Shechan was cast out on the roadside. He had his rent fully paid
