

	PAGE
Godwyn's description of the Virginia Clergy	349
Pamphlet entitled ' Virginia's Cure,' &c.	352
Its enumeration of evils which afflicted the Church there	354
Its proposal of Virginia Fellowships	355
Its demand for a Bishop. Its testimony to the affectionate spirit of the Virginians	356
Abortive attempt to send a Bishop to Virginia	358
Sir Leoline Jenkins	359
His Will, endowing two Fellowships for the Foreign Plantations	360
Appeal made therein to the Universities of England. Referred to by Dr. Woodward in that day	363
An Appeal, which still urges the claims of her Colonies upon them	364
Those claims recognised by recent institutions in the Uni- versities	365
And by the services of some of their most distinguished mem- bers. Henry Martyn. Bishop Middleton	367
Bishop Heber	368
Bishop Daniel Wilson	369
Encouragement arising therefrom. Corresponding duties	371
Virginia	373
Sir Henry Chicheley, deputy-governor under Lord Culpepper. Arrival of Culpepper	375
His vicious character and government. His commission for- feited. His Report to the Committee of Colonies	376
Evils to which the Virginia Clergy were exposed	377
Jefferson's misstatements on the subject	378
Evils to which Virginia was exposed from the adjoining terri- tories	379
Effingham, the successor, of Culpepper	380
Returns to England. The sentiments of Virginia with regard to the Revolution	381
Governors Andros and Nicholson	382
The Rev. James Blair, Commissary	383
Blair's previous life. His energy and zeal in Virginia. Wil- liam and Mary College	384
Refusal of the House of Burgesses to redress their grievances	388
The answer of the Clergy	389
Blair dismissed from the Council	391
Defects in Blair's character	392