Only Seven Remain.

The degree of master of arts was conferred in absentia on Capt. Edward Hudson Young, B.A., B.D., who is overseas on service. Reference was made to the fact that in one of the valedictories read at the graduates' banquet Wednesday evening the statement was made that of a class of 50 that had started the graduation course, only seven remained to receive degrees, owing in large measure to the numbers who had left for service of king and country.

blood in our men, the same grade of intellects. That is a dangerous, fallacious theory which Dr. Braithwaite quotes." A laugh was evoked at this point as the doctor declared that it is vitamins which made height, and not heredity at all.

Welcome Women Meds.

Dr. McCallum stated also that women will be welcome as students in the Medical College, to take the whole graduati 1 course. Dr. McCallum also presented the special awards in medicine.

The presentation to Edward Herbert

Apart from the conferring of degrees, the presentation of special awards and the administration of the Hippocratic oath to the graduates in medicine by Dr. R. Ferguson, eloquent and inspiring addresses were delivered by Chancellor Roche and President Braithwaite.

Call for Service.

Addressing himself especially to the graduating classes, Dr. Braithwaite emphasized the call of the age to service and the opportunity which is offered to young people of the character, training, ambition and possibilities of the graduates to serve the nation and the world. In connection with war and after-thewar problems, the president drew attention to the many important fields of services offered, in the realm of science and research work, scholarship, social welfare, statesmanship.

The community chorus will continue to the Public Health, Rev. Dr. R. G. Poever, the board of governors, senate, faculties, graduates and members of the Alumni Association. Mrs. A. D. Jordan presided at the organ, playing the processional and recessional.

London's Opportunity.

Addressing the audience which had gathered for the graduation exercises, Dr. Braithwaite reminded it that any town can have factories, churches, hospitals, schools, but that it is given to very few cities to have a university with all that it represents. Only three Ontario cities have universities, several of the provinces of the Dominion only one. In view of the fact that a university is such a unique privilege and confers such benefits, the president of the Western bespoke for this institution the support of the community in Western Ontario, financial and otherwise.

"Don't go into the world with the idea that your student days are over. Let honor and integrity be your guiding principle. Be true and steadfast, and privileges conferred upon you tonight. Maintain a kindly feeling to and loyalty towards your alma mater," was the charge of Chancellor Roche to the graduates. Concerning the future of the university, had aiready given fine service, which has rendered it worthy of support. Reminding the members of the graduating class that they have not completed their education, but only attained the method of how to attain knowledge, he passed to the great problems which the young people going out as graduates of the university at this time are called upon to face—problems infinitely more perplexing and intricate than they would be obliged to face had there been no war.

Parade to Hall.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, an imposing procession left the Y. M. C. A. and marshalled by A. S. "Joan the Woman" is all the tragedy and beauty of life. So truly is it staged and so universally fascinating is the life of the "Maid of Orleans," that we live the picture as it passes before us. The plot has very cleverly been so constructed that it connects the story with the present times. The picture opens with a prologue A young British soldier. with a prologue. A young British soldier fighting on the western front discovers fighting on the western front discovers a strange sword of the 14th century type in one of the trenches. While he is examining it a call comes for a volunteer to blow up a certain enemy trench at midnight. The Briton falls asleep and before him passes the vision of Joan of Arc. In this vision he is Bric Trent, a gallant English captain, fighting with his king to conquer France from Charles VII. He is wounded and a strange peasant maid, Joan, France from Charles VII. He is woulded and a strange peasant maid, Joan, finds him and binds his wounds, saving his life. It is while she is examining his gauntiets that she sees the vision that takes her to the court as the destined saviour of France. In the first battle that she fights, Trent is captured. Following the victory her only requests are that Trent be released and that the people of her village never be taxed. He falls in love with the maid and pleads for a return of his love, and although her heart cries out for him she answers: "There is love in each neart for but one thing—mine is for France."

The cost of producing this great film story—the greatest photodrama of the age—was over $1,000,000.

Over 1,000 horses and more than 3,000 persons were utilized in the play.

The Majestic Concert Orchestra provides special music during the presentation of this wonderful photoplay. The music tends to add realism to the many gripping and thrilling scenes.

CAPTAIN ROBERT WARWICK AT THE MAJESTIC, SATURDAY ONLY, THIS WEEK.

It is safe to say that the "standing room only" sign will be very much in evidence at the Majestic Theatre on week.

Saturday only, this week as the attraction at that time will be "The Mad Lover." accredited by critics all over the country with being one of the most interesting plays produced in recent years.

It is an all-absorbing picture, telling a human interest story of the first degree, and is produced by an excellent cast, headed by such eminent players as Captain Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein.

When the picture was shown at the Strand Theatre, New York, it drew some of the largest crowds ever assembled in that house, where it enjoyed a long run.

Captain Robert Warwick's popularity makes any picture in which he appears, one to be eagerly sought after, but never since he first began his career as a screen star, have so many inquiries about this production been received. UNITED STATES MUST FURNISH RESERVES TO WIN BATTLE

That the United States must furnish the reserves to win the final battle is a truth recognized not only in Allied countries, but in Germany also. "We must hurry to obtain a solid victory by arms before the full American forces arrive," admonishes one German paper, while others seek to reassure their readers by decrying American efforts. Meanwhile, Secretary Baker's statement that the United States already has more than half a million soldiers in France makes it certain that it is more than replacing the British and French losses in the battle on the western front.

You will derive immense satisfaction from reading the summary of the war which comprises the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (May 18). It shows what is expected of the United States armies; how its soldiers are fighting, and how they have been decorated; what the Germans think of the American soldiers; how United States shipbuilding is progressing, etc. Other vital subjects covered in this week's Digest are:

National Crisis Brings Motor=Trucks to the Fore.

The story of how the motor-truck is solving the problems of freight congestion, of increasing farm production and conservation of farm labor, of facilitating food markets, and of transporting passengers, is one of the most constructive and important narratives that could be written. Those who are interested in the great national question will read with interest the latest developments of the national motor-truck era by Harry Wilkin Perry in this number of THE DIGEST. THE LITERARY DIGEST appeals to, and is carefully read by manufacturers, business executives, progressive retailers, everywhere throughout the nation, and this number will be of particular interest to them inasmuch as all varieties of commercial vehicles are pictured and described. Prospective buyers of motor-trucks are especially urged to buy THE DIGEST this week and read these interesting announcements.
