WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

ing. The incident ended by Germany making some sort of amends for the sinking of the Arabis.

So a careful study of what was demanded by the United States, of what Germany had previously promised and disregarded, and of what she "offers" in her latest note, convinces the student that what Germany "offers" as a "concession" is the same as what she has been professing all along that she has been doing. First she denies that her submarine sank the Sussex, then, when cornered, she has to admit it, but she reserves certain points, and she says: "Should it turn out that the commander was wrong in assuming the vessel to be a man of war, the German Government will not fail to draw the consequences resulting therefrom." The promise, "draw the consequences resulting therefrom," has no meaning.

The Germans, sure enough, are still aiming at the capture of Hill 304, which must be carried before the Mort Homme position can be turned. They attempted to carry it by a furious assault the night before last and were soundly beaten. The only result that they had to show for their attempt which was flanked with that disregard for the lives of their men that the German generals have shown in this war, was the gaining of a footing in one or two points of the first trenches of the defence. Whether this attack was intended to mask the movements of troops behind the Verdun lines to keep the French generals occupied with the local situation, or if really presages another effort against Verdun, cannot be foretold. It is probable that the arrival of contingents from Russia in France will keep the German general staff sufficiently worried about the future to force it to maintain a larger army in the west than Germany can afford to maintain.

The Russians report the capturing of Turkish trenches in the direction of Erzincan, in Armenia, and the bayoneting of prisoners of the occupants. They repulsed fresh attempts of the Turks to attack their positions on the road to Baiburt, 65 miles northwest of Erzerum, and they also repulsed all Turkish attacks in the Bitlis region. The campaign in this theatre seems to be slowed up by the arrival of Turkish reinforcements and the coming of the spring break-up.

Two zeppelins were destroyed yesterday. Both were brought down by the fire of warships. A British scout cruiser which was operating along the coast of Schleswig accounted for one; allies' warships in the Saloniki harbor accounted for the other. The last one had been sent on an air raid against Saloniki. This makes the third of these aircraft to be disposed of in two days, and their destruction entails a loss of about $2,500,000 of the money of the German taxpayer.

SEVENTY RECRUITS PASS EXAMINATION

ISSUE MORE BUTTONS

Toronto Troops May Be Located at Simcoe Summer Camp.

Seventy recruits passed the doctor at the recruiting depot yesterday and were taken on the strength of the various units. The Beavers and the Fusiliers, with 12 men each, headed the list for the day. Altogether, 144 volunteered, 72 being rejected as being medically unfit. During the day 150 rejected buttons were given out, and it is estimated roughly that since last Sunday 1500 buttons have been distributed.

The Real Secret of Rejuvenating the Face

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to rejuvenate the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The aged, faded or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed in an entirely safe and rational manner by the nightly application of ordinary mercurized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded article. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day, there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The mercurized wax, procurable at any drug store (an ounce is sufficient), is applied like cold cream. In the morning it is erased with soap and water. It's the best thing known for freckles, blackheads, pimples, moth patches, liver spots and fine surface wrinkles.

from Toronto and other nearby cities, in No. 2 Military Division, to train this summer, has been practically solved by the military authorities. Unless some order to the contrary comes in the near future from Ottawa, the majority of the soldiers will be stationed at Simcoe for the summer months. If the most of the staff will also likely open their quarters at that place. Those troops which don't go to Simcoe will be stationed at the same place, in Niagara-on-the-Lake. Steps have been taken already by the Toronto headquarters to arrange special boat service from Toronto to the Niagara camp.

This explodes the theory that summer quarters might be opened at Long Branch near Hamilton. Also no definite number of troops have been assigned to the Simcoe site, it is estimated that, with a few minor "fixing-ups," accommodation for 60,000 men could be made. It is the consensus of opinion, however, that no more than 20,000 men at the most will go to Simcoe.

Col. J. R. Biggar, director-general of supplies and transports at Ottawa, was in conference yesterday with Brigadier-General W. A. Logan, discussing details of moving the troops to the new military camps.

Yesterday afternoon's camp orders give out at headquarters contained the news that great precautions will be taken by the military authorities. All tents running in the vicinity of the camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake will be closely watched by guards and searched frequently.

Pte. Frank Collins of the Welland Canal guard, who was killed at St. Catharines Wednesday when he was struck by a radial car, was buried with full military honors from the residence of his sister, 275 Silver Birch avenue, yesterday afternoon.

His Charge That Liberals Have Been Trapped, Was Cheered.

members of the shell committee were acting as contractors or in a judiciary capacity.

The line of cross examination proposed by E. F. B. Johnston, aimed, he said, to clear up that point. He was surprised to find the government so reluctant to enlarge the scope of the enquiry. He also thought it most important that a court should be created which could take testimony by commission in New York.

Borden's Refusal. Sir Robert Borden said in reply, the government did not feel justified in extending the scope of the investigation. The money expended by the shell committee was money that belonged to the Imperial government. He had called the attention of the Imperial authorities to the charges made against the shell committee and had expressed his willingness to co-operate with them or assist in setting on foot a thorough and complete investigation. Meanwhile, he thought the royal commissioners had liberally interpreted their instructions and were giving a wide latitude to counsel in investigation.

He quoted from Sir William Meredith's opinion, to show that Mr. Johnston was at liberty to enquire into every contract and sub-contract feeling, in regard to the 5,000,000 shells orders out of which the orders for fuses developed.

The debate was continued by Hon. William Pugsley, Hon. C. J. Doherty and E. M. Macdonald (Picton). These gentlemen discussed the questions involved from a legal standpoint.

Meighen in Form. Hon. Arthur Meighen made a fighting speech, which roused the government members to great enthusiasm. He said the Liberals were caught in a trap and were trying to wiggle their way out. Having humiliated the Liberals to produce any evidence in support of their charges they sought to create a diversion by discussing far afield.

Mr. Carvell's motion was defeated by a majority of 27.

At the evening sitting the house took up the report of the committee. Sir Robert Borden was acting in place of Sir Sam Hughes and became visibly nettled by the remarks of Hon. Frank Oliver. Considerable feeling was shown by both gentlemen, and Col. Currie (North Simcoe) intervened with a degree of knowledge of the subject gained at the front.

The musketry training our troops got up England, he said, was superb. Amid loud applause from both sides of the house he described some of the feats which had distinguished Canadian soldiers at the front.

Lack of Rifles Alleged. Mr. Oliver contended that he had not enough rifles for the training of our troops in Canada. He said that insufficient target practice and were sent without sufficient training to the front.

The charge the prime minister resented. He said the Canadian troops were famous as sharpshooters and rebuked Mr. Oliver's occasional unduly alarm among the relatives of the soldiers at the front.

Col. Currie (North Simcoe), said the soldiers in Canada, the better equipped than were the soldiers of Kitchener's army. All our volunteers were in uniform and nearly all had rifles. When he left England, nearly a year ago, he found perhaps half the volunteers without rifles or uniforms. He said that Canada had made a splendid showing.

Col. Currie went on to explain that much of the target practice was now done with dummy bullets, and that a regiment that was only half equipped with rifles could yet get daily target practice by alternating Oliver's Criticism.

Mr. Oliver said we are equipping school cadets with rifles and leaving our troops in Canada, the better equipped than were the soldiers of Kitchener's army.

He charged the government with having been remiss in its duties in not foreseeing the war would be of long duration and making adequate preparations.

The Ottawa minister said in reply that the Ross Rifle Company was now turning out more rifles than any other rifle company in America and that the output was now fifteen times greater than in normal times. Rifles were being distributed as fast as they could be manufactured.

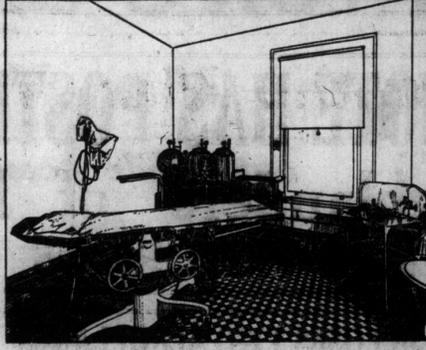

"If the number for Edmonton (Mr. Oliver) would turn his prophetic gaze to the end of the war and foretell its duration, he would materially assist the empire." (Applause.)

Mr. Oliver quoted criticisms of the Ross rifle from the National Laboratory, which occurred in St. Michael's Hospital on Tuesday, May 2, as a result of formaldehyde being administered by mistake by a nurse in place of magnesium sulphate, was resumed last night at the morgue before Coroner Dr. Cottam. The jury, after hearing the evidence of witnesses, exonerated Miss Attmore, who administered the fatal dose, from all blame, as the bottle from which the poison was taken was similar to the one in general use. It was suggested that in

The Medical Officer of Health Writes:

"Please convey to your board my congratulations upon the success of their hospital since it was established. . . you have my hearty sympathy."

"WOMEN'S WORK FOR WOMEN'S NEED."

The Late Dr. Bruce Smith Said:

"It is time that a city the size of Toronto had a Women's Hospital. . . although I would much rather see you begin with a new building."

We Speak for Poor Women Who Suffer in Silence

It's a pretty lusty youngster that New Hospital at Rusholme Road—only ten months old and its little cot isn't nearly big enough to hold it! What's to be done about it? Why, what else would Toronto do than to pitch right in and give the Women's College Hospital the accommodation it so richly deserves?

Meanwhile, let us take a look at its "Family Tree," and understand what a precious treasure it is to poor women who suffer their ills in silence. Their name must be legion in this great city—in all Canada. For, be it known that there is but one hospital in the whole Dominion where poor women may be attended by physicians of their own sex.

More Room Must be Provided at the Women's College Hospital

Let no one think that the pressure upon the Women's College Hospital is transitory. Would that it were so! The unselfish women who built it, because the ever-growing need compelled action, have been at this noble work for years. It was in 1910 that the dispensary at 18 Seaton Street, Toronto, was established, following years of helpful work for suffering poor women. For the year ending Oct. 31, 1913, there were no less than 2,859 consultations at the little dispensary. Next year there were 3,872—an increase of 813, or 20 per cent. For the year ending December 31st, 1915, there were no less than 4,015 consultations.

Do you wonder that the little dispensary at Seaton Street soon had seven beds—all it could accommodate—and the blessings of hospital care extended to women who have not the courage to confide their trouble to a strange physician of the opposite sex. There are all too many cases on record of women who have endured their agony for many years—until the Women's College Hospital was enabled to bring them the release from their suffering, which so many of them called "A Godsend for some of us women"—one of the women whose gratitude happens to be on record declares that to the care she had she owes her life!

$120,000 Needed—Your Payments May be Spread Over Two Years

It requires no effort of the imagination to realize why women of all classes blessed with sympathy and understanding of their own sex are as one in support of the Women's College Hospital and its noble work. The women's organizations of the city, too, many of them so closely in touch with women's work for women that they know the need all too well, are sending in their letters of hearty endorsement of the campaign.

We appeal to you with the utmost confidence. The buildings must be begun at once. Pay down what you can, and the balance of your subscription may be spread over two years if desired.

Again we say little wonder that when the need for a new hospital to cope with the ever-swelling tide of applications for aid could be withstood no longer the women and the men of Toronto acted promptly. In wartime they turned in with right good will and a hearty generosity worthy of Toronto the Good. They soon had the residential property at 125 Rusholme Road turned into a tidy little haven of rest and relief for suffering women.

But—only ten months' experience has proven again that this great work MUST go on. The tide has overwhelmed us again. Again we say, would that the need were not so great! But it is here. It must be dealt with now. It cannot and will not be slighted. Toronto will not permit such a thing. That is why

On Wednesday, May 10th, or days following, we will visit you and will rely upon your generous help. We will leave it to the ailing poor women of Toronto to be grateful for what you do on their behalf.
