Daily Hints For the Cook

DROP CAKES. Three-quarters cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 3/4 cup milk, 2 1/2 cups flour (bread or pastry), 2 teaspoons cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon lemon extract. Drop on well-greased pan a desertspoonful in each place, a little way apart. Before baking sprinkle with a little sugar and cinnamon. If baked in a very hot oven they will be light and puffy as one could wish.

GRAHAM BREADS. Take about 1 pint of fairly thick sour milk, 1 rounding teaspoon of saleratus, 1 of salt, 2 table-spoons of molasses (1 use 1 of sugar and like it better) and graham flour to make a stiff batter. Have gum pans smoking hot and buttered when you drop in the batter. Bake about 20 minutes in a good hot oven.

BANDMASTER JONES IS DEAD

Although he said but little about his loss at any time, he felt it keenly, and, it is said, he was never the same man after it. Among the pieces of music thus lost and which can never be replaced were many marches and waltzes. There was also a piece of music played during the trooping of the colors, called The Meeting of the Waters, which Bandmaster Jones had dedicated to Lady Warwick. This was played when her ladyship presented the colors to the 3rd Royal Warwickshire Regiment. Another was a waltz called the Palladium Waltz, and dedicated to the 62nd. There was also a march called the Semper Paratus March.

Born 1835

Frederick Howell Jones was born July 13, 1835, in Swansea, Glamorganshire, Wales. He enlisted in the 54th Regiment of Foot (the West Norfolk), April 5, 1852. The regiment was sent to Canada next year, but returned to England again in 1854, landing there about 17 years of age, and yet when volunteers were called for to bring up the powder from the magazine he stepped to the front. The task called for almost superhuman endurance but at last it was almost all got out and thrown over the ship's side.

The women and children who had been got into the boats as soon as the fire had broken out, had been keeping as close to the ship as they dared, but now they were ordered further off for there some powder left which in spite of all efforts could not be reached. The water about the ship was fairly swarming with sharks, which seemed to be waiting for the inevitable ending of the tragedy. When the explosion came, however, the ship still floated, and only two men were injured. They soon recovered. For nine days the crippled ship staggered over the waves, and at last they landed in Port Louis in the Mauritius amid a perfect ovation from the inhabitants.

On Feb. 23, 1865, Bandmaster Jones was promoted corporal, winning his sergeant's stripes July 6, 1869, which shows that his progress was slow in those days. In 1871 he made a second trip to India, but was invalided home in 1875. Soon after that he was promoted to the position of bandmaster to the 1st Warwickshire militia, the name of which was afterwards changed to the 3rd Battalion Royal Warwickshire Regiment. This position he held till he came to this country in 1888.

Came to Canada

Upon coming to Canada he went to Seaford (Ont.), where he held the position of bandmaster to the 33rd Regiment till he came to St. John, N. B., in 1892. From the time he came to this city he was bandmaster of the 62nd, and caretaker of the drill hall. Owing to ill health he had resigned both offices on Jan. 5th, 1910. He therefore served the flag for fifty-seven years and nine months a day.

His Family

On Oct. 22, 1868, he married Rebecca Chapman, and they had five sons and five daughters. One of the daughters, Laura, died of the cholera in India. The names of the surviving members of the family are: Mrs. Charles H. Henderson, New York; Fred C., Princess street, A. L. of Boston; W. H., caretaker of the drill hall; E., leader of the Nickel orchestra; Mrs. Edgar P. Logan, and Mrs. William H. Charlton, of this city.

Since coming here Bandmaster Jones' painstaking work had recommended him to the notice of his superior officers, and many flattering recommendations were received by him from time to time. The 62nd Band also held his merits in high esteem and on Christmas day, 1905, presented to him a gold watch, besides many other means of appreciation.

It may be interesting to note that the 54th Regiment of Foot was raised in 1753. They fought in the war of the American revolution with distinction. The regiment was present at the battle of Brooklyn in 1776. Major John Andre, who was executed by the Americans in the autumn of 1780, was a captain of this regiment, and Major General of the forces under Sir Henry Clinton. On Dec. 24, 1802, while stationed at Gibraltar, the men of the 54th saw the Duke of Kent, the father of the late Queen Victoria, from being murdered by the troops who had mutinied. For this service His Royal Highness presented to the regiment a magnificent piece of silver plate, suitably inscribed.

AT MOUNT ALLISON.

In Beethoven hall, St. John, yesterday afternoon T. B. Kider, head of the manual training department, and Dr. Solomon of the hospital, were present. Many inspected the house science apartments afterwards. Yesterday afternoon last evening David Hebburn, Madame Clodius, soprano; Miss Eydell, head of Mount Allison voice department, and the Bostonia Societies gave excellent concert.

Mrs. J. Harvey Brown died at her home in Moulton last evening, aged 67 years. Her husband, son, and daughter survive.
