Light Weight Clothing FOR SUMMER.

There's something comfortably negligé about these two-piece suits. Flannels were always considered ideal for summer wear, and now homespun effects and unlined serges have supplanted them not only being fashionable but more shape-keeping and durable. You pay from $10 to $14 for the suits here. If they weren't the best they wouldn't be here. S. B. and D. B. Sacks and Norfolks come rise the styles.

FRENZIED MERCHANTIZING.

"I have heard of buying a cent's worth of milk, vinegar or paraffine oil," said a citizen to a Star reporter by way of casual remark this morning. "but I got a shock in a small store just a few minutes ago when a fellow came in and asked for a cent's worth of chewing tobacco."

"Did he get it?" asked the scribe. "Yes, he got it," was the reply. "a little cut about half an inch deep on the end of a fig of MacDonald's black. It struck me awfully funny."

"And so it might."

"That's an auction piano your daughter's got, isn't it?" asked the sarcastic woman next door.

"No, indeed!" replied the proud mother, indignantly. "What made you think that?"

"Oh, probably because it's 'going going, going' all the time."-Philadelphian Ledger.
