

ANNOUNCEMENT.

DURING the first session of the Ontario Legislature in 1867-68, the Dental profession, in the Province of Ontario, became the subject of Legislative action, by the passage of the "Act respecting Dentistry." In the interval which has elapsed since that time, the Board of Examiners elected under the Authority of that act, have been very materially raising the standard of the Dental Profession by gradually increasing the stringency of the examination, which the Dental student must pass before he can be admitted to practice.

At the present time it is almost impossible for the student to pass the required examination without the aid of other advantages than those usually afforded by private instruction in a dental office. Attendance upon a regular course of lectures on the subjects for examination has indeed become almost a necessity. In view of this fact, the members of the Ontario Dental Society have united with the Board of Examiners of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario, in petitioning the Legislature, at its approaching session for such amendments to the "Act respecting Dentistry," as will enable the Board to make arrangements for the establishment of a Dental College in the city of Toronto, having authority to confer the Degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery. Pending the action of the Legislature and to meet the wants of those students who desire to come up for examination before these amendments can be carried into effect the Ontario Dental College, has been established.

It will be the aim of the Faculty, to give thorough instruction in all branches included in the course.

To accomplish this object, suitable accommodation will be provided, with all necessary conveniences, and the Professors will deliver regular lectures daily.

In order to give the student the opportunity for personal practice
