

MAKE NEIGHBOURS'

John F. Kennedy

Oh No !

No matter how deep the sorrow of the world may be at the death of president Kennedy it can not be a fraction of hers. He was a man with whom not only America, but men throughout the world could identify with. He infused some of his own energy and youthfulness into a world frozen with spatic hatred and distrust.

He was a man who won admiration from both friend or foe . . . as such, his death should be mourned as befits a man with such high aspiration for his country and the bravery and dedication with which he sought to fulfil them.

Words cannot express — but the example of President Kennedy will live in the memory and in the hearts of the world's people.

Words cannot express — so perhaps a silence, a deep respectful, thoughtful silence, is better than conventional cliché-ridden expressions of grief and sympathy.

Maritime Premiers
Conference, 1957

Pres. MacKay's Message

Our University community has been shocked and saddened by the news of the assassination of President Kennedy.

In the days which he spent on our campus in the autumn of 1957 many of us had the opportunity to learn for ourselves of his qualities of leadership and devotion to duty. On that occasion, in speaking at Convocation, he said:

"But I do urge that each of you, regardless of your chosen occupation, consider entering the field of politics at some stage in your career, that you offer to the political arena, and to the critical problems of our society which are decided therein — including the delicate problems of Canadian-American co-operation — the benefits of the talents which society has helped to develop in you. I ask you to decide, as Goethe put it, whether you will be an anvil — or a hammer. The formal phases of the "anvil" stage will soon be completed for many of you, though hopefully you will continue to absorb still more in the years ahead. The question now is whether you are to be a hammer — whether you are to give to the world in which you are reared and educated the broadest possible benefits of that education."

President Kennedy gave to the United States, to Canada and to all nations political leadership of the highest order. We of the University of New Brunswick, in common with peoples throughout the world, mourn the loss which all have suffered in this tragedy.

J.F.K. Delivers Message
At Convocation