B.C. student strike ends

VANCOUVER (CUP) — The 4,000 students of Capilano College returned to classes Nov. 12 after a two-week faculty strike, based largely on the issue of increased workloads.

The faculty and college board reached a tentative three-year agreement Nov. 10, and agreed to a special committee to investigate workloads. They refused, however, to reveal any further details.

Faculty representatives Crawford Killian said faculty now have the option to teach an eight or nine section course load. Eight sections had been the standard until the 1984-85 academic year, when instructors agreed to teach a nine section load to keep the college within budget. The salary for an eight section load had been in negotiation, as the board originally offered $518 less than the 1984 pay scale.

Student council president Theresa Newlove, who supported the strike for its duration, said she was glad to go back to classes, which will be extended three days until Dec. 12.

Students get the vote.

SUDBURY (CUP) — Students at Laurentian University have finally won voting rights on the university's highest decision-making body. Laurentian was the last Ontario university without student voting representation on its Board of Governors.

"This is fantastic," said student union vice-president David Filion. "It's going to encourage much more student involvement. We'll be making decisions for the students."

Board chair Norman Forest said he was impressed with the work of student lobbyists. "The presentation was well prepared. I'm happy about the results," he said.

Ontario Federation of Students chair Matt Cerosimo, who had been involved with the issue for several months, said, "I think it was a good example of student cooperation, both on campus and across the country. We worked together, and it was just beautiful to watch."

Students at Laurentian have attempted unsuccessfully for voting representation for many years.

The board voted unanimously Oct. 24 to give students voting rights.

Council wimps out

VANCOUVER (CUP) — The student council of the university of British Columbia has voted against a boycott of South African-linked products, but will give students an opportunity to reverse the decision early next year.

The motion to stop selling Carling O'Keefe and Rothmans products, which required a two-thirds majority to pass, was defeated 23-13 at a Nov. 5 meeting.

Council president Simon Seshadri said the proposed boycott was beyond the mandate of student government even though other Canadian student unions, including those at Simon Fraser University and the universities of Victoria, Alberta and Ottawa, have already banned the sale of South African-linked products.

Michael Moeti, a member of Students for a Free Southern Africa, was appalled by the vote. "They took no account of the outside world," Moeti said. "They seemed more pre-occupied in how it would hurt themselves." Currently sales of Carling products in the council-run pubs account for $270,000 annually, or 30 per cent of all bar revenue.

Students will vote on the issue in a referendum coinciding with council elections Jan. 28-30.

Protestors remember

OTTAWA (CUP) — More than 100 anti-nuclear activists marked Remembrance Day this year with a somewhat unconventional ceremony, when 58 protestors splattered their own blood on the headquarters of the Department of National Defence and blocked one of the building's entrances for almost an hour.

Demonstrators blocking a major entrance during the morning rush hour Nov. 12 were dragged away from a sit-in protest by Ottawa police, while supporters chanted "hold the next test at the White House" and "DND — you've got blood on your hands."

The 58 were quickly photographed by police, lifted into paddy wagons and taken to Ottawa's only police station for processing.

Organizer Peter Dundas said the group was trying to make Canadians "aware of the tremendous increase in Canadian involvement in the testing of new weapons systems and technologies."

"We're linking our protest to Remembrance Day because it's important that people remember the many wars that are going on around the world today," said Dundas, "so they can be stopped, along with preparations for future wars."
