

Erindale to host job conference

A conference to bring together representatives from industry and education to discuss "Education for Jobs" will be held at Erindale College Nov. 22.

The day-long conference will feature several speakers.

The morning session, dealing with the demands of the 1980s as viewed by industry will be chaired by Don Pollack, chairman of the Ontario Manpower Commission. Guests will include Tom Savage, president of International Telephone and Telegraph Canada; Wally Majesky, chairman of the Metro Toronto Labor Council; Ann Kempe of Consumers' Gas and Peter Broadmore of IBM.

The afternoon session, entitled Developing the Solutions, will be chaired by Duncan Green, chairman of the provincial government's secondary education review project.

Other panelists include John Fraser, Peel's director of education; Dr. Donald Ivey of the University of Toronto; John Porter, president of Sheridan College; Hal Beggs of the Ministry of Colleges and Universities and Peter Dawson of Procter and Gamble Inc.

At 2:30 p.m., Peel regional social services commissioner Jim Crozier will speak on helping the unemployable.

The conference is being sponsored by Liberal party riding associations in Peel and Halton and by the Toronto and District Liberal Association.

Cost of the event, which includes a luncheon, is $10. Tickets can be obtained by calling Murray Schelter at 273-3767.

Their own park

Tecumseh Dr. area residents wanted a creative playground in Woodeden Park. So they raised $9,000 and built one. Ward 2 Councillor Margaret Marland was on hand last week to officially open the new playground. She even took the time to take three-year-old Heidi Eillak for a swing while her friends watched.
