cat, or cow. When the young ones were hatched out they had no feathers, and they had little wings and little feet, and a little mouth, and little toes, and a little beak. They could not fly yet, but the two old ones could fly for miles and miles. The nest was on a pear-tree limb, and I saw the old ones bringing food for the little ones. They kept their mouths open and the old ones dropped the food in. One day our old cat saw them and she ate them up. The old ones were very vexed because the cat ate their five young ones.

Dear Puck and Beavers,—My father has taken "The Farmer's Advocate" as long as I can remember, and he likes it. I like it for the Beaver Circle that is in it. I am going to tell you about the pets my sister and I have. We have a cat; it won't lie down under the stove, but it comes into the dining-room or parlor and lies in one of the rocking-chairs. My brother has a dog called Collie. He has a harness for it, and he makes the dog pull him on the hand-sleigh. We have a pony called Nellie. My brother drives it.

Many letters must still be held over. Please do not write any more until I tell you to, Beavers.

Several letters were thrown in the w. p. b. because they were written on both sides of the paper.

Spring Waking.

A Snowdrop lay in the sweet, dark ground,

"Come out," said the Sun, "Come out!"

But she lay quite still and she heard no sound;

"Asleep," said the Sun, "No doubt!"

The Snowdrop heard, for she raised her head,

"Look spry," said the Sun, "look spry!"

"It's warm," said the Snowdrop, "here in bed,"

"Oh, fie!" said the Sun, "oh fie!"

"You call too soon, Mr. Sun, you do!"

"No, no," said the Sun, "Oh, no!"

"There's something above and I can't see through."

"It's snow," said the Sun, "just snow."

"But I say, Mr. Sun, are the Robins here?"

"Maybe," said the Sun, "Maybe."

"There wasn't a bird when you called last year."

"Come out," said the Sun, "and see!"

The Snowdrop sighed, for she liked her nap,

And there wasn't a bird in sight.

But she popped out of bed in her white night-cap;

"That's right," said the Sun, "That's right!"

And, soon as that small night-cap was seen,

A Robin began to sing,

The air grew warm, and the grass turned green.

"'Tis Spring!" laughed the Sun, "'Tis Spring!"
