

THE COURIER

Published by The Brantford Courier Limited, every afternoon, at Dalhousie Street, Brantford, Ontario, Canada. Subscription rate: By carrier, 10 cents a week; by mail to British possessions and the United States, $2 per annum.

SEMI-WEEKLY COURIER—Published on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, at 11 per year, payable in advance. To the United States, 50 cents extra for postage.

Advertising Office: Queen City Chambers, 82 Church Street, Toronto, H. E. Smallpeice, Representative.

Tuesday, April 21, 1914

THE WORLD'S UNREST.

In an article upon the above subject the Vancouver Province gives this list:

Great Britain—Home Rule and industrial unrest.

France—The Calmette-Caillaux murder, which is likely to destroy the ministry and may bring about a revolution.

Germany—The Zabern incident, which has brought up the whole problem of the military versus the people, and may precipitate a war in Europe.

Italy—The after-consequences of the Tripoli and Balkan wars.

Austria—The race differences which have been accentuated by the Balkan war and have brought about the press campaign against Russia.

Russia—The internal conflict of the feeling stirred up against Germany, and the Revolution.

Turkey—The result of the Balkan war and pressure from Russia and support from Germany.

South Africa—The labor problem and immigration of Hindus.

India—The South African problem, immigration and self-government.

China—The Republic with Yuan Shi Kai as despot. The White Wolf devastating one province. General scramble for commercial concessions.

Japan—The naval scandal and the political upheaval.

United States—The Monroe doctrine, Mexico and labor unrest.

Australia and New Zealand—Immigration and labor a revolution.

Porto—Just over a revolution.

Brazil—A revolution just suppressed.

Haiti—In the middle of a revolution.

Spain—Monarchy or Republic.

UNITED STATES WARS.

Here is a brief war history of the United States, showing how many men were engaged in each conflict:

War.	Date.	Engaged.
War of the Revolution	1775-1783	300,781
Northwestern Indian Wars	1790-1795	8,983
War with France	1798-1800	4,503
War with Tripoli	1813-1814	3,330
Creek Indian war	1813-1814	13,781
War of 1812	1812-1815	576,622
Seminole Indian War	1817-1818	7,911
Blackhawk Indian War	1817-1818	7,911
War with Mexico	1846-1848	112,230
Apache-Navajo War	1849-1855	2,501
War with Utah	1849-1855	2,501
Seminole Indian War	1856-1858	3,687
Civil War	1861-1865	2,724,408
Spanish-American War	1898	274,417
Philippine Insurrection	1899-1900	60,000

UP TO WILSON.

Judging from the tone of the United States papers a very large majority of the people there are just about crazy for a fight with Mexico.

They are not already, said papers will pretty soon have them so. The New York Herald has been one of the mildest sheets in connection with this demand, but after Huerta's refusal to have the stars and stripes saluted, it said:

"General Victoriano Huerta has refused to yield to the entirely proper and wholly justified demands of President Wilson.

"The head of the putative government at Mexico City defies the United States.

"In accordance with his announced programme, President Wilson will go before Congress to-day and lay the case before the Representatives of the American people.

"The result is a foregone conclusion. Congress will support the President. It will give him, without quibbling and without delay, full authority to use the land and naval forces of the United States to uphold the national dignity.

"It can only mean the end of Huerta and Huertism. Once military intervention in any form is begun it cannot stop until Huerta is driven from power, until order is restored throughout Mexico, until a government representing the will of the Mexican people is installed at Mexico City.

"The die is cast. Once more the United States is called upon to take upon its shoulders the burden of putting in order the house of one of its sister republics upon this hemisphere. It is a burden we would have been glad to escape could it have been escaped with honor. But civilization demands that the United States exercise primacy upon this hemisphere, and this primacy carries with it responsibility of upholding law and order in the Americas."

The above would be going much

CHEEVERS BROTHERS

(Continued from Page 1)

upon suspended sentence. He warned him that if ever he got into trouble again this suspended sentence would come into action against him. William was discharged.

Milkmen and Their Bottles

Tate and two empty milk bottles caused some ill-feeling between two local milkmen.

James had both delivered milk to Mrs. Cubbs, and James alleges that Courtage took his empty bottles, upon being asked for them, denied all knowledge of them, and gave him a push, to which he responded sending complainant, Courtage, down. In the fall his face struck a pump and caused the injuries received, which complainant had said were inflicted by defendant's fist. It was a case of six and two thirds, and of the plaintiff wanted damages he would have to go to a civil court. The case was dismissed.

Free Trade and Trusts

To hear some Liberal Free Traders talk in the House of Commons, one would almost imagine that trusts and combines are to be found only in countries where there exists a Protective Tariff.

To endeavor to give such an impression for mere party advantage, is as dishonest as political morality warped by narrow partisanship can be. No one knows better than Free Traders themselves that in no country in the world have trusts and combines flourished as they have under the aegis of Free Trade in England.

But it should always be remembered, in dealing with the character and scope of trusts, that such combinations only exert such power in the restraint of trade and for the enhancing of prices as is permitted them by the indifference of the people. And the people need not, unless they choose, submit to tyranny and imposition. When trusts become oppressive in this country the people can deal with them, if they be Canadian trusts.

But if the competition of home industries is eliminated, as it would be under Free Trade, and the people have become dependent upon foreign trusts for goods which are produced abroad, they cannot fix their prices. It is argued that trusts are an inevitable development of modern business methods, and are not injurious, if properly controlled. If, therefore, we must have the trust with us, let them be Canadian and not foreign trusts.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Still Another.

Mikiko Levadovitz, a Polish living at 10 Palace street, was fined $1.00 and costs for a breach of the Liquor License Act. P. C.'s Borthwick and Rutherford testified as to the glass and bottles found at his house, 12 Palace street, on Sunday, in addition to two kegs of beer which were half empty.

He pleaded not guilty, and claimed that the beer consumed was not sold to the men who were drunk and found quarrelling outside of the defendant's house.

Tarzan of The Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company.

CHAPTER XIX. The Outpost of the World.

WITH the report of his gun D'Arnot saw the door fly open and the figure of a man pitch headlong within on to the cabin floor. It was Tarzan.

With a cry of anguish D'Arnot sprang to the ape man's side and, kneeling, lifted the ape head in his arms, calling Tarzan's name aloud.

There was no response, and then D'Arnot placed his ear above the man's head. To his joy he heard its steady beating beneath.

The bullet had struck a glancing blow upon the skull. There was a fracture of the bone beneath.

D'Arnot breathed a sigh of relief and went about bathing the blood from Tarzan's face.

Soon the cool water revived him, and presently he opened his eyes to look in questioning surprise at D'Arnot.

The latter had bound the wound with pieces of cloth, and as he saw that Tarzan had regained consciousness he rose and, going to the table, wrote a message, which he handed to the ape man, explaining the terrible mistake he had made and how thankful he was that the wound was not more serious. Then he handed Tarzan the two messages that had been left for him.

Tarzan read the first one through with a look of sorrow on his face. The second one he turned over and over, searching for an opening. He had never seen a sealed envelope before. At length he handed it to D'Arnot. The latter opened it and handed the letter back to Tarzan.

Sitting on a camp stool, the ape man spread the written sheet before him and read:

To Tarzan of the Apes: Before I leave let me add my thanks to those of Mr. Clayton for the kindness you have shown in permitting us the use of your cabin.

That you never came to make friends with us has been a great regret to us. We should have liked so much to see and thank our host.

There is another I should like to thank also, but he did not come back, though I cannot believe that he is dead. I do not know his name. He is the great white giant who wore the diamond locket upon his breast.

If you know him and can speak his language carry my thanks to him and tell him that I waited seven days for him to tell him also that I'm home in America. In the city of Baltimore, there will always be a welcome for him if he cares to come.

I found a note you wrote me lying among the logs near the tree near the cabin. I do not know how you learned to love me who have never spoken to me, and I am very sorry if it is true, for I have already spoken my heart to another.

But I know that I am always your friend. JANE PORTER.

Tarzan sat with gaze upon the floor for nearly an hour. It was evident to him from notes that they did not know that he and Tarzan of the apes are one and the same.

"I have given my heart to another," he repeated over and over again to himself.

For a week they did little but rest. Meanwhile D'Arnot coached Tarzan in French. At the end of that time the two men could converse quite easily.

One night as they were sitting with- in the cabin before retiring Tarzan turned to D'Arnot.

"Where is America?" he said. D'Arnot pointed toward the north-west.

"Many thousands of miles across the ocean," he replied. "Why?"

"I am going there."

"It is impossible, my friend," he said. Tarzan thought for a long time.

"Do any white men live in Africa?" he asked.

"Yes."

"We shall go there tomorrow," announced Tarzan.

Again D'Arnot smiled and shook his head.

"It is too far. We should die long before we reached them."

"Do you wish to stay here, then, forever?" asked Tarzan.

"No," said D'Arnot.

"Then we shall start tomorrow. I do not like it here longer. I should rather die than remain here."

"Well," answered D'Arnot with a shrug, "I do not know, my friend, but I also would rather die than remain here. If you go I shall go with you."

"It is settled then," said Tarzan. "I shall start for America tomorrow."

"How will you get to America without money?" asked D'Arnot.

"What is money?" inquired Tarzan. It took a long time to make him understand.

"How do men get money?" he asked at last.

"They work for it."

"Very well. I will work for it."

"No, my friend," returned D'Arnot, "you need not worry about money, enough for two, enough for twenty, much more than is good for one man, and you shall have all you need if ever we reach civilization."

So on the following day they started north along the shore. Each man carried a carbine and ammunition, besides bedding and some food and cooking utensils.

The latter seemed to Tarzan a most useless encumbrance, so he threw his away.

"But you must learn to eat cooked food, my friend," remonstrated D'Ar-

Tarzan of The Apes

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey Company.

CHAPTER XIX. The Outpost of the World.

WITH the report of his gun D'Arnot saw the door fly open and the figure of a man pitch headlong within on to the cabin floor. It was Tarzan.

With a cry of anguish D'Arnot sprang to the ape man's side and, kneeling, lifted the ape head in his arms, calling Tarzan's name aloud.

There was no response, and then D'Arnot placed his ear above the man's head. To his joy he heard its steady beating beneath.

The bullet had struck a glancing blow upon the skull. There was a fracture of the bone beneath.

D'Arnot breathed a sigh of relief and went about bathing the blood from Tarzan's face.

Soon the cool water revived him, and presently he opened his eyes to look in questioning surprise at D'Arnot.

The latter had bound the wound with pieces of cloth, and as he saw that Tarzan had regained consciousness he rose and, going to the table, wrote a message, which he handed to the ape man, explaining the terrible mistake he had made and how thankful he was that the wound was not more serious. Then he handed Tarzan the two messages that had been left for him.

Tarzan read the first one through with a look of sorrow on his face. The second one he turned over and over, searching for an opening. He had never seen a sealed envelope before. At length he handed it to D'Arnot. The latter opened it and handed the letter back to Tarzan.

Sitting on a camp stool, the ape man spread the written sheet before him and read:

To Tarzan of the Apes: Before I leave let me add my thanks to those of Mr. Clayton for the kindness you have shown in permitting us the use of your cabin.

That you never came to make friends with us has been a great regret to us. We should have liked so much to see and thank our host.

There is another I should like to thank also, but he did not come back, though I cannot believe that he is dead. I do not know his name. He is the great white giant who wore the diamond locket upon his breast.

If you know him and can speak his language carry my thanks to him and tell him that I waited seven days for him to tell him also that I'm home in America. In the city of Baltimore, there will always be a welcome for him if he cares to come.

I found a note you wrote me lying among the logs near the tree near the cabin. I do not know how you learned to love me who have never spoken to me, and I am very sorry if it is true, for I have already spoken my heart to another.

But I know that I am always your friend. JANE PORTER.

Tarzan sat with gaze upon the floor for nearly an hour. It was evident to him from notes that they did not know that he and Tarzan of the apes are one and the same.

"I have given my heart to another," he repeated over and over again to himself.

For a week they did little but rest. Meanwhile D'Arnot coached Tarzan in French. At the end of that time the two men could converse quite easily.

One night as they were sitting with- in the cabin before retiring Tarzan turned to D'Arnot.

"Where is America?" he said. D'Arnot pointed toward the north-west.

"Many thousands of miles across the ocean," he replied. "Why?"

"I am going there."

"It is impossible, my friend," he said. Tarzan thought for a long time.

"Do any white men live in Africa?" he asked.

"Yes."

"We shall go there tomorrow," announced Tarzan.

Again D'Arnot smiled and shook his head.

"It is too far. We should die long before we reached them."

"Do you wish to stay here, then, forever?" asked Tarzan.

"No," said D'Arnot.

"Then we shall start tomorrow. I do not like it here longer. I should rather die than remain here."

"Well," answered D'Arnot with a shrug, "I do not know, my friend, but I also would rather die than remain here. If you go I shall go with you."

"It is settled then," said Tarzan. "I shall start for America tomorrow."

"How will you get to America without money?" asked D'Arnot.

"What is money?" inquired Tarzan. It took a long time to make him understand.

"How do men get money?" he asked at last.

"They work for it."

"Very well. I will work for it."

"No, my friend," returned D'Arnot, "you need not worry about money, enough for two, enough for twenty, much more than is good for one man, and you shall have all you need if ever we reach civilization."

So on the following day they started north along the shore. Each man carried a carbine and ammunition, besides bedding and some food and cooking utensils.

The latter seemed to Tarzan a most useless encumbrance, so he threw his away.

"But you must learn to eat cooked food, my friend," remonstrated D'Ar-

Birthdays of Note

TUESDAY, APRIL TWENTY-FIRST

HIS HONOR D. B. MacTAVISH, judge of the county court of Carleton and a prominent and public-spirited citizen of Ottawa, celebrates his sixty-second birthday on this date.

He is now one of the most eminent county court judges in Ontario, possessing a splendid reputation among members of the bar. Before being raised to the Bench he practised in the capital, being for some time city solicitor. He was retained at various times by the Dominion Government to argue cases before the Privy Council. Since becoming a judge he has more than once acted as a royal commissioner to investigate charges of corruption. In private life he has been active in the promotion of education.

VERY QUIET CITY.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, April 20.—This city continues very quiet in spite of the situation. Communication by launch with the American war vessels lying off the port was rendered difficult to-day by a stiff north wind.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

WINDSOR, April 20.—Charles Moran a 200 pound youth was thought by Essex county residents a second hero of Homer's Iliad when he got up uninjured after a 45 foot fall off a windmill at his father's farm.

Moran landed on his feet after the fall, then bounced into a nearby water trough, from which he was pulled by a hired man. Sunday night he complained of severe pains and died a few minutes later.

SENTENCED TO-DAY.

HALIFAX, April 20.—Edward Cook, Jr., of Sheet Harbor, convicted of the murder of Charles Assaff—a Syrian pedlar, at Sheet Harbor, was sentenced to be hanged on June 30. Previous to being sentenced he professes his innocence.

CLEANSES YOUR HAIR, MAKES IT BEAUTIFUL

It Becomes Thick, Wavy, Lustrous and All Dandruff Disappears.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be heavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get