THE PRIZE FIGHT.

There was a prize-fight at Fort Erie Monday night. Everybody who knew, in advance, of the event, was aware of the fact that it was going to be a prize-fight—everybody but one man. The Toronto Globe says:

"After a year of neglect, however, the clubhouse was reopened a few weeks ago for some harmless amateur bouts, and these being unmolested by a new manager attempted to put on a real prize-fight, and although the men were not heavy-weights, as on the occasion of the last battle, and the notable gathering of notorious sporting personages was not in evidence, the contest was intended as a prize-fight pure and simple, and as such was regarded by the 1,500 Buffalo people who went over to witness it."

The one man who did not know that it was going to be a prize-fight was the attorney-general of Ontario—a gentleman who is usually credited with being the possessor of much brains and much sense. In order to discover the real inwardness of the thing, the attorney-general sent a provincial detective to Fort Erie, to "detect" the thing, and to stop the fight if it turned out to be a fight. Thus the attorney-general, instead of forbidding the fight, and preventing it, sent a public officer to act as a sort of referee to see that the professional pugilists, fighting for money and glory, did not hit each other too hard! It was a fight, all right, as everybody but the attorney-general knew it would be, and the able detective detected the fact in the first round, and stopped the performance. Thus the attorney-general enabled some Buffalo promoters to pocket something like $7,500 of other people's money, to say nothing of the amount spent by the visitors in getting to the scene of the fight. We feel quite sure that the Buffalo promoters of the fight feel very much obliged to the attorney-general.

It seems to us to be little short of amazing that Mr. Gibson should fail to know something of the characteristics of a prize-fight, and be able to prevent even the start of a fight, or the making of preliminary arrangements for a fight. The mayor of Chicago finds no difficulty in preventing prize-fights in his jurisdiction. He doesn't care what the promoters call it; he calls it prize-fighting and forbids it.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE DUNDONALD FAREWELL.

The people of the city of Ottawa and the surrounding country have given the Government its answer.

The Government took the position that a public farewell to Lord Dundonald was an evidence of antagonism to the Government, that the people who took part in it would be "attacking the Government"—in fact, to quote the words of the local Government organ, the farewell to Dundonald was "a Tory demonstration."

Forty thousand people from Ottawa and the surrounding country turned out last night to cheer Dundonald, to bid him farewell and to show him and the empire the warm place he holds in their hearts as a soldier and as one of the two official links that bind us to the British empire. It is needless to expatiate upon the tumultuous enthusiasm of the excited and cheering thousands who crowded the streets and made it almost impossible for the General to reach the train that was to bear him to Montreal. The scene at the station has never been duplicated in the history of the city. His carriage was wedged in a mass of frantic, cheering humanity. Ladies, even, were lifted on the steps to press the General's hands. It was a quarter of an hour before he could be extricated from the crowd and escorted to his car, not twenty feet away. It was the wildest scene of enthusiasm and excitement that Ottawa has ever witnessed.

But it was not a "Tory demonstration." Liberals and Conservatives, civil servants and ordinary citizens, alike contributed to make it the magnificent success it was. It was a spontaneous outburst of loyalty and imperial sentiment, regardless of politics and despite the ridiculous and fatuous preliminary efforts of the powers that be to counteract and suppress it.

The Capital did itself proud. It showed that when British and imperial sentiment is touched there is a chord in the heart of every true Canadian that responds in a manner to make mere Governments tremble. General Lord Dundonald was a worthy incentive to such an outburst. But none recognized better than he that the General typified an idea and a sentiment, and that in

CONNELLY--LIDDY

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Alphonsus church on Wednesday morning 27th inst., when Miss Maggie Connelly, sister of ex-Ald. Connelly, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Liddy, of Walkerville, at the 7 o'clock mass by the very Rev. J. Ed. Meunier, vicar general. After the ceremony a magnificent wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, after which the newly married couple started on a trip to Cleveland and other points of interest. Owing to the recent death of the bride's brother the event was confined to a few immediate relatives. The ceremony was unique, solemn, quiet, and unobtrusive from the fact that the bride and groom are deaf mutes, yet possessing intelligence of high order, each having had the advantages of a good education. Starting on life's journey with high hopes of happiness, may their way be the ways of pleasantness and all their paths be peace.—Windsor Record.
