From Industrial Agent To Flight Commander

Interesting des criptions of incidents ir the lives of fly ing men in England to friends written by Acting Flight Com-Acting Flight Commander Graham Waters Ourtle, formerly Industrial Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Monoreal, who is now a gying instructor in Eugland. The school in which he teaches is a vast expense of country close to a beautiful seaside resort. He writes: "The view from the air is suwrites: "The view from the air is su perb, and we often fly out over the sea and dive down near the Pritish warships we only travel it the miles an hour! I am ken very busy instructing, and am tugning out a lot of expert pilots. The school I am connected with is one in which flyers finish their course of training. A lot of chaps from Borden come to us to get final leasons, and then they are sent to France. We do all kinds of fancy performances—loop the loop, roll, make spinning nose dives, side slips, and vertical turns."

The describes how "little excitements" happen when one acconduct gets into the "wash, or slip-stream of air" made by a preceding navigator. The letters indicate that Acting Flight Commander Curtis is a lucky master of the high school in which he scars. He says: "We have a lot of smashes, but very few deaths, considering everything. None of my pupils has been killed yet."

Acting Flight Commander Curtis has lately been recommended by his commanding officer for a first lieutenancy, and expects to be sent to France at any time. He joined the Royal Flying Corps on November 15th, 1916.
