The Passing Hour

WHEN PAT PROPOSED.

The courting days had passed pleasantly. In due course Pat proposed.

"Bridget, me darlint, will yez marry me?"

"Sure, Pat," replied the girl, "and who else did yez think I would marry?"

Pat kissed her rapturously.

"There's only one point, Pat, dear," she said, "I can never agree to say the word 'obey' in the marriage ceremony."

"Oh, don't worry about that trifle, me darlint," replied Pat. "Say anything you like. It won't make a bit of difference at all, at all, if you only do what you're told."

'TIS OFTEN THE CASE.

George was the ne'er-do-well of the village. He was always getting into trouble, and many a time had the kind-hearted villagers helped him out with gifts of food and money.

One day he entered the local grocer's shop and said in plaintive tones:

"O, Mr. Jinks, I must have a sack of flour. I haven't a penny in the world, and my family are starving. I don't know what will become of them if you won't help me."

"All right," said the kindly grocer. "If you need a sack of flour so badly and have no money, I'll give you one."

But remember, George, there's a circus coming to the village in a day's time. If I give you a sack of flour, you're sure you won't sell it and take your family to the circus?"

George face wore a look of praise-worthy honesty as he replied:

"O, no, I've got the circus money saved up already."

Sixteen-year-old Mary had played the piano at a recital the evening before, and the program had appeared in the evening paper. Mary came from school elated. "My name is in the paper," she told her mother.

Six-year-old Esther looked up quickly from her play.

"Huh!" she said, coolly, to her older sister, "my name is in the Bible."—Congregationalist.

Her husband is a successful inventor. Some of his excuses for stopping out late are in use all over the world.

Mrs. Newlywed (who has been hearing news of an old sweetheart, whom she filled)—"And when you told him I was married did he seem to be sorry?"

Her Companion—"Yes, he was very sorry—although he didn't know the man personally."

A young bride-elect was ordering her trousseau in London, before going out to New Zealand to be married.

The dressmaker suggested only very warm clothes, and when she murmured, asserting that the climate was beautifully mild, she was immediately informed:

"I assure you, madam, you are mistaken. New Zealand is where the frozen meat comes from."

Philosopher—"No man is a hero to his valet."

Miss Sharp—"It's not to be wondered at. Anybody who wants to be considered a hero ought at least to be man enough to dress himself."

Miss Eva Roddick Tells How Cuticura Healed Eczema

"My trouble began with an itching and burning of the skin and then eczema broke out on my hands in a rash. It got so trying on my nerves that I scratched it, which caused watery, sore eruptions. It was very painful to put my hands in water, and hard for me to do my work. I also lost my rest at night because of the irritation."

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using almost two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Eva Roddick, Fullidge Lake, Nova Scotia.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum helps to prevent skin troubles.

Tobacco King Sued

MARRIAGE DISSOLVED IN THE RIVIERA.

President of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Sir Mortimer B. Davis was divorced by his wife in the Riviera. Lady Davis, who before her marriage was Miss Henriette

Maria Meyer, of California, obtained a decree at Grasse on the grounds of "habitual and notorious misconduct."

Sir Mortimer was ordered to pay 10,000 francs. He is a well-known figure on the Riviera, and is reputed to be one of the wealthiest players at the casino, where he generally favours baccarat. The matrimonial troubles of the tobacco magnate have been public property for some time. Sir Mortimer, who owns the fine Villa des Glaieus just outside Cannes, applied some time ago to the Courts at Nice for divorce, but his suit was rejected on the ground that he had not resided in France for a sufficient length of time. Lady Davis succeeded in her counter-suit.

The letter continues: "My greatest regret is that I cannot help the Fatherland by giving it sons. If I had a dozen sons I would foster the hate of France in them, and in my love for Deutschland I would see all twelve die and be the proudest mother in my grief."

But only my dear husband and myself can help the Fatherland when the great day of reckoning with France comes, and this must come, and only the thought of this makes life worth living for us."

The dirty scoundrels treat us as if they are conquerors, but where would the blackguards have been if half the world had not been mobilized against us?"

BRITISH LOAN REQUEST TO HELP CAMPAIGN—A WOMAN'S LETTER.

An Aberdeen woman has received a letter from the wife of a German who is a district leader of the Steel Helmet League of Front Line Soldiers, a German ex-soldiers' organization. The writer states that her husband has already enrolled over one million members, and in order to help him in his work she asked her Aberdeen friend if her husband might have a loan of £75 to buy a motor bicycle, as his "push" bicycle has caused him terrible fatigue.
