

THREE ELECTION PETITIONS. LOCAL NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

Judge Cameron's Judgment on the Preliminary Objections—Status of the Cases. In the North York, North Wellington, and Russell election cases Judge Cameron delivered an exhaustive judgment yesterday, dealing with the motions to strike out the preliminary objections to these petitions which go to the question of the jurisdiction of the courts. The effect of Mr. Cameron's judgment is that the preliminary objections are allowed to stand and are to be formally tried, but the words of the judgment are strong in support of the objections. The judgment concludes as follows: "The application (the North York case) is in the high court of justice, common pleas division, which in view has no jurisdiction in controverted elections of the House of Commons of Canada, and therefore, as I have already said, it must fail and the order nisi be discharged, but I think the question raised by the preliminary objections is such as may be well presented for adjudication by this court, as they embrace objections which tend to prevent further proceedings on the petition without touching the merits of the petition, and that I regard the conclusion I have arrived at, as it may prevent the investigation of corrupt practices alleged against the members-elect in many instances, and it is an important question, of course it will be well understood that this regard has no reference to the respondent in this particular case, as I have not the slightest knowledge of the merits of the petition." The objections here in some measure sustained are made in nearly all the election cases now before the court, and it is presumed that the preliminary objections will be tried in all, or in one for all. The learned judge holds that the courts of Queen's Bench, Chancery and Common Pleas are still in existence for election purposes, so that the two or three petitions which were presented to the former officer of these courts will be regulated as to venue in the high court of justice irregular.

THE SUNDAY QUESTION.

Building the Pacific on the Sabbath—Pro and Con—Letters from Correspondents. The Syndicate is doing a good deal of Sunday labor in pushing the construction of the line in the Northwest, and so are the government contractors in British Columbia. There is a proviso in the contract between the government and the British Columbia contractors which runs: "No work whatever shall at any time or place be carried on during Sunday, and the contractor shall take all necessary steps for preventing any foreman, or agent, or men from working or employing others on that day." The Montreal Post alludes upon the government to stop this Sunday work. The Winnipeg Times just to hand defends not only the work of construction but insists on the Sunday working of the lines already built. It says: "In a new country of magnificent distances like this, Sunday travel on railroads is a work of necessity. In Eastern Canada the Sabbatharians have had their way much to the detriment of the public comfort but not to the advantage of public utility. If the C.P. R. push on their work on Sundays as well as week days, it seems to me we ought to be very much obliged to them, for the sooner will their line be completed and the sooner will the country be opened up and settled."
