"Those touching and edifying addresses published under the title of 'The Adieux of Adolphe Monod.' The speaker was a French Protestant pastor, eminent for piety and for his extraordinary abilities as a preacher; the pulpit from which he spoke—and it is sometimes the most effective of all pulpits—was a death-bed, around which, Sunday by Sunday (for he lingered long), he gathered as many members of his little flock as the sick-room would hold; and received with them the Holy Communion, and spoke to them of such subjects as the 'Regrets of a Dying Man.'"—Edward Meyrick Goulburn, D.D., Dean of Norwich, etc.

"Few books can be found which are richer in spiritual wisdom, or fuller of that sweetness which passes from the Gospel into the thoughts of those who have dwelt much upon it and learned to live in it, than this selection and translation from the writings of the great and good Fénelon. It deals with and discusses the practical question of duty which come up in the Christian life, and is designed to help those who may be troubled to know what they ought to do in special circumstances."—Churchman.

A Day with Christ.

By the Rev. Samuel Cox. Bevelled boards, red edges. $1.25.

"Done in so simple, fascinating, and graphic a fashion, that the events all seem to acquire a new significance, and our conception of them is rendered much more vivid and complete than when based only on detached narratives in different Gospels."—The Arcadian.

This biography is complete in all that is necessary to convey a uniform history of the time and of the character of the subject of the memoir. . . .
