1. Rounding errors (also known as round-off errors) are common occurrences in financial/statistical reporting and result from rounding approximations when truncating decimal places. As such, details presented in this table may not add up to exact totals.
2. Figures are preliminary and may change following further quality assurance. Final amounts will be published in the Statistical Report on International Assistance by the end of March 2016 on DFATD's website.
3. Figures in this table exclude repayments of loans and repayable contributions.
4. In order to carry out its activities, DFATD receives services without charge from various federal departments: Public Works and Government Services Canada, Department of Justice Canada, Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat, and Employment and Social Development Canada.
