Sir Henry Thornton: As a matter of fact, the government and ourselves do not go into the money market simultaneously. That is subject to the decision of the Minister of Finance. The government and ourselves keep out of each other's way.

The Chairman: The object of Mr. Heaps' question is to determine in his own mind whether the method of financing by the railways is effective and whether it is profitable. That is what he wants to get at.

Mr. Hears: I know it is difficult to obtain an answer to that question at a moment's notice, but possibly Mr. Grant might bring down a statement at some other time.

Mr. GRANT: Yes, I will do that.

Mr. FAIRWEATHER: We now pass to the Eastern lines, having completed the income account of the Canadian National Railways.

EASTERN LINES

ANALYSIS OF 1930 RESULTS OF OPERATIONS AS COMPARED WITH 1929

Under the provisions of the Maritime Freight Rates Act of 1927, separate accounts are shown for the lines east of Levis and Diamond Junction (Eastern Lines).

The Income Statement for the Eastern Lines is shown on page 43 of the Annual Report, with supplementary details of revenue and expenses on pages 44-48.
