BIG DIAMOND PIN WAS A GIVE AWAY

Gordon A. Bonter, Wanted in Walkerton, Answered to His Name.

FRAUD IS CHARGE LAID

Alleged to Have Planted Coal in Well and Sold Stock.

A great big diamond set in a horse-shoe stick pin proved the undoing of Gordon A. Bonter, who styles himself a promoter, and is wanted in Walkerton, Ont., where it is alleged he de-frauded two old women out of $3000 by selling them stock in a coal mine which Bonter is said to have manufactured by dumping a couple of bags of coal down an old well.

Two weeks ago the Toronto police received a request from Walkerton to apprehend Bonter here on charges of fraud, and in a lengthy description the Toronto police were informed that when Bonter left that vicinity he wore huge diamond in his tie pin. Detective Twigg was walking along Eas King street last evening and near the King Edward Hotel passed a man wore a diamond as big as a pea horseshoe tie pin, and recollected the description given by the Walkerton police Otherwise, tho, the man did not answer to the details, so it was up to Twigg to use his wits.
Scheme That Worked.

"Why, hello, Mr. Bonter." he said as he approached him, extending his hand. "Why, do you know me?" replied the man as he hesitatingly accepted twigg's hand.

"Why, sure, I've been looking for you for two weeks," replied Twigg. Tve got a warrant here for your ar-

Bonter is said to have purchased a farm between Walkerton and Hanover and after working it for some months suddenly announced he had discovered coal on it. He got somebody to come up from Toronto and examine the find and on the strength of the visitor's statements sold stock to the two women who are the complainants. The ce claim that the place where the coal was found was formerly an old well and that Bonter must have dumpcoal into it himself. The police are still looking for another man in connection with the de-frauding of the women. Bonter goes back to Walkerton to stand trial. To Do Bodily Harm.

In the police court yesterday morn-ing John Kannukho was committed for trial by Magistrate Ellis on a charge of shooting with the intent to do bod-lly harm to his wife Lillian.

Committed for Trial. Joseph Harlander, the German who was fined the other day in the police court for cursing King George in the Bay Tree Hotel, was arraigned before Magistrate Ellis in the police court ployers, the Ornamental Bronze Co. The cheque was found in the bank bearing Harlander's name. He had no authority to make any use of the cheque and was committed for trial. Arthur Mulvey pleaded not guilty to the charge of stealing an electric machine from Cunningham & Co. and was

Special to The Toronto World CORNWALL, Sept. 15.—Dr. C. J. Hamilton of Cornwall received the following letter from his son, Lieut. C. D. Hamilton of Field Ambulance Corps No. 141 of the British expeditionary force in France. The letter follows: "Last Wednesday marked my first experience with German shells. I was ordered up to an advanced dressing station, to outain an insight into the nethods employed in caring for certain classes of vounded. I had occur sion to visit (censored) in a motor ambulance, which had been sent to the village for casualty cases. The Ger-mans were bombarding the place viclously as we arrived. High explo-sive missiles were falling in the streets, and among the dwellings at short intervals, and the crack of shrapnel overhead was, to say the least, very disconcerting. My abode became the centre of the famous chateau of (censored). No doubt you have al-ready heard tales connected with the fierce battle for the possession of this place. It is one of the most interesting fights of the present war. The Germans were in occupation at the time and the French came up, surrounded the chateau and dug themselves in. Two garden walls separated the contesting forces. Behind the first was the enemy, and back of the second our allies. The latter tunneled under the garden, exploded a mine beneath the enemies trenches, producing fear-ful slaughter, and then charged with the bayonet. They drove the Germans back into the buildings, who occupied

"Our mountaineer detachments during the day of Sept. 14 made bold raids against the enemy's positions at Cresta, Villa Corna (10,000 feet) at the course of the hand-to-hand fighting the walls and roof of the upper storey head of the Foce Torrent and at Cogave way, bringing down hundreds of Huns on top of their opponents. Then, in the darkened corridors and rooms below, ensued a scrap which was more like a battle among wild animals than human beings. The French poked ma-chine guns thru the cellar windows and finished off nearly every man in the basement. The few who escaped were driven back to the lines they now

"On Tuesday we went out to our first line, walking thru a series of reserve and communicating trenches. There are a fine lot of fellows ou there and they are making the best of a bal time. They read, play various games and write letters home, and when not doing these they try to worry the Germans. I had a look over the parapet and by means of a French glass, which my O. C. had been kind enough to lend me, could make out the battered condition of things on the other side. The Germans must have been having a very uncomfortable time on their side for we usually send back six shells for every one that comes over.'

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The Daily Chronicle says: "A London evening paper, followed haltingly by some other ournals, has published a sensational Russian 'revelation,' the blowing up of the whole of the great works at Okhpa near Petrograd. Enormous headlines proclaim that this foul deed committed by the Germans was the blow that crippled Russia, and that as the result of the destruction of Russia's only arsenal, the Russian Woolwich, Russia was quite crippled.
The facts as ascertained by The Daily Chronicle are:

First, Okhpa is not the only munition factory in Russia. It is one of the largest powder mills, but there are seven or eight other works, each as big as that at Okhpa.
Second, the explosion did not take place at Okhpa, but merely at a small factory devoted to the manufacture of melinite and T.N.T. at a village some niles from Okhpa. Third, it was a minor matter. Only small quantity of explosives was destroyed. The damage was slight, and easily repaired within a few weeks.

The main factories and magazine were untouched. Fourth, there was nothing to lead he authorities to believe that the explosion was anything more than one of the accidents that occasionally oceur in powder works.
