

As I passed back again through the door to where Huddleston was waiting for me, I heard the doors at the further end of the chamber unlatched and the footstep of the folks—physicians, courtiers, Bishops and the rest—that poured in to see the end.