HE "KNEW HIS WAYS."
(London Chronicle).

Colonel Younghusband of Tibet fame tells one good story of a native who was with him in the British expedition which penetrated into Tibet, over which Colonel Younghusband was in command. The colonel was extremely annoyed by the guerilla tactics of the mountaineers, especially by one determined sniper, whose aim was particularly good, and who was responsible for at least one casualty every day.

One day the colonel was approached by a native who had recently joined the expedition, and requested to be allowed to go out and stalk the stalker. This was readily granted, and the man went off. A day or two later he returned bearing the sniper's rifle, and a grin of triumph on his dusky countenance.

"Well," said the colonel, "how did you succeed in silencing the man?"

"I knew his ways, sahib," was the reply. "I kill him easily."

"Why, was he a friend of yours?" asked Colonel Younghusband.

"No, sahib—only my father," was the illuminating reply.

NOT EVEN CONDENSED CREAM

"My dear," said the young husband as he took the bottle of milk from the dumbwaiter and held it up to the light, "have you noticed that there's never any cream on this milk?"

"I spoke to the milkman about it," she replied, "and he explained that the company always 'fill their bottle so full that there's no room for cream on top." —Everybody's Magazine.
