LONDON LOSES COLOR

FOR EFFICIENCY AS SALVAGE HORSES GO.

London, May 8, (By Mail).—London has just lost the last of its dapple-grey Salvage Corps horses, and with them lost in picturesqueness and romance what it is supposed to gain in efficiency, comments "The London Daily Express."

Ten months ago the fire brigade parted with its last pair of horses at Knightsbridge. Colonel C. J. Fox, the chief officer of the Salvage Corps, went to the corps Southwark station recently and witnessed the passing out of Nellie Gray and November, his last dapple grays. They were returned to the contractor.

The Wincor fire service—brigade and Salvage Corps—is now motor-driven. London will never again hear the clatter of the hoofs as when the famous dapple grays galloped through the streets to the half-raising shouts of "Hi! Hi! Hi!" from the salvage men. "The old horse vehicles of the corps pupils had petitioned the directors of the Association to endeavor to have Miss Peplar continue in her work here but she was anxious to take further training and could not be prevailed upon to remain. She will be very greatly missed. There was a company of fifty or more of the gymnasium girls at the station to say good-bye to Miss Peplar last night and she received an embarrassingly large number of farewell gifts.

Miss Gertrude Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Howard, of this city, who has been in training at the Newport Hospital, Newport, R. I., graduated on June 7 after completing her three years' course. Many friends will extend hearty congratulations and wish her continued success in her chosen profession. Miss Howard was formerly in the employ of Manchester Robertson Allison, Ltd.
