Crouch End. No place is half so dreary as Crouch End. Where gutter-bands disconsolately play. Row after row, mean houses stretch away. Sadly, and all their common sorrows blend With the sad skies above them — not Nor Wornwood Scrubs are desolate as they. All of the streets are dirt-begrimed and gray. No place is half so dreary as Crouch End.

HERE ON HOLIDAY.

Rev. R. Armstrong, of Manitoba, arrived in the city this afternoon on the Montreal train, en route to Halifax to visit his brother, Hon. E. H. Armstrong, minister of lands and mines in the Nova Scotia government. Mr. Armstrong said that the last time he had been in St. John was in the fall of 1894, as a member of the Mount Allison football team. He said that the St. John boys won a hard-fought game at that time, as a result of which the two teams were tied in the series, and a memorable play-off was staged at Moncton in December 1 of that year. He said that St. John seemed to be as busy a place as ever. Mr. Armstrong is on his way to his native province, and after a few weeks' visit in Halifax, will take part in the Centennial celebration at Bridgetown next month.

THIRIFT AND BUSINESS.

(Thrift Magazine.) A great deal is being said at the present time about less saving and more spending in the city. The wheels of industry revolve a little more slowly. Merely spending money with no thought in view than assisting business may have no far-reaching beneficial effect. It is true that too much hoarding hurts business and it is true also that merely spending money for the purpose of keeping business on the go is a false doctrine and will not work out in the long run. There are many ways in which money can be spent that will help the business situation. The nation needs more buildings, more homes, more roads, more facilities, more schools, more wharfs. Money spent for purposes of this kind will prove of substantial benefit. The farmer who spends money in tiling his land, thereby making it more productive and valuable, is spending constructively, and the entire business world to some extent will be benefited. If he spends the same amount of money in things that he does not need in which have no practical value he would not be doing the business situation any substantial good.

OCCUPATION FOR THE YOUNG.

(Toronto Globe.) One of the most prolific sources of youthful crimes is idleness. The boy living on a farm is to some extent freed from this evil by chores. The city boy in many cases has no occupation but school and preparing lessons for school, which fills only part of five days, and leaves a large amount of leisure to be improved or abused. Boyish energy is in itself a good thing, but undirected it is quite likely to find vent in mischief. It is too readily assumed that the school relieves the parent society of all responsibility for training. Where occupation is not at hand, as in the case of the Boy Scout movement, which seeks to direct boyish energy and give wholesome scope for boyish love of adventure. The Y. M. C. A. has similar aims, and in many churches the Sunday school is supplemented by organizations covering the activities of the young during the whole week and keeping in constant touch with them. This point was emphasized by Bishop Reeve in laying the corner-stone of a memorial hall for St. Aidan's church. There could hardly be any better memorial to the young men who sacrificed or risked their lives in the war than an institution intended to develop the faculties of the young of the present day and strengthen the fibre of the nation.

AMERICAN ARTISTS NOT ALL POOR MEN

Some Who Have "Arrived" Make as Much as $100,000 Yearly.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—An artist of foreign birth working in America has made the complaint that our people in general care little about art and have small knowledge of it, but he conceded that American artists make more money than those of any other country. "There is nowhere in the world," he said, "that artists get as high prices for their work or where they make so much money. There is nowhere in the world that artists live as well as they do here. They occupy high-priced apartments and have magnificent studios." It is true that some artists in New York occupy the finest apartments and that many of them have country homes as well. Portrait painters frequently have studios in several cities. There is a general idea from old tales that it is conducive to good art for an artist to starve in a garret, but the modern artist believes that a reasonable amount of remuneration is one of the best aids to art, and while he is getting on his feet he has his vacation probably well do some other work to help out. It is said that there are 80,000 art students in this country. Some of them will succeed, but no one begins to bother with them until they have proved it. The batteries will be: For the Artillery team, McBeath and Milligan; for Fair Vale, E. Higgins and J. Higgins. St. Peter's Juniors will challenge the Rocklands to a game of baseball to be played on Elm street diamond Friday evening.
