"Best Quality with Greatest Quantity"

STILL THE MOTTO AT MAPLE SHADE.

OUR Shropshire lambs are not numerous, but they are of good quality and good size.
We still have left also a few strong, smooth, home-bred yearlings of good breeding and character. Our Shorthorn Calves are developing finely, and present the characteristic quality and thick flesh of the typical Cruickshank Shorthorn. Prices moderate; if you doubt it, write and believe.

THE STANDARD DICTIONARY.

We have received from the Canadian office of Funk & Wagnalls, 11 Richmond street, Toronto, a single volume copy, in full morocco, of the Standard Dictionary, a work including over 2,300 handsomely printed and profusely illustrated pages. Substantially, it is an ency-clopedic presentation of the English language, containing over 300,000 vocabulary terms. It is just as far ahead of the old "dictionaries" as the modern self-binder is of the grain cradle our fathers used to swing. It possesses the element of completeness, and when one turns to its pages in search of etymological facts it is with a reasonable certainty of finding what is sought, providing it comes within date of the range of investigation by the editorial corps of experts engaged upon it. It is issued both in single and two volume form, and after a fair trial in actual everyday editorial use of the former, we cannot but speak of it in the very highest terms of commendation. We have used other large dictionaries, but they do not at all compare with the Standard. Every day agriculture is coming to be treated more and more from a scientific standpoint; hence, scarcely a day passes without need of reference to some technical point or other, and in this regard we have proved its trustworthiness.
To our readers who desire a complete, modern dictionary, we can, without any hesitation, commend the Standard. In the matter of typography and binding, so important in a large, often used volume, it is a handsome, substantial and most satisfactory work.

CANADIAN CITIZENSHIP.

In order to the upbuilding of a great nation in this age of the world, we must have a people trained in the duties of citizenship. At the risk of reflecting somewhat upon the school systems of our various provinces in Canada, we believe that there is a serious lack in the education of the youth on this very vital subject. There is a deplorable lack on the part of Canadian youths, which, unfortunately for the State as well as the individual, extends on into manhood, of the nature and operation of the system of government under which we live, to say nothing of its origin and development.
We apprehend that some such connection as this must have actuated Dr. Bourinot, Clerk of the Canadian House of Commons, a distinguished constitutional authority, in preparing a new book entitled "How Canada is Governed," recently issued by the Copp Clark Co., Toronto. It gives us the most concise and popular account of Canadian institutions that has yet come before our notice, and we commend it to the attention of our readers who would acquaint themselves with the executive legislature, judicial and municipal institutions of the country, the relations of the various provinces to the Dominion, and of the Dominion to the greatest empire the world has ever seen.
No man is properly prepared to discharge the duties of citizenship until he has acquainted himself with most of the facts which this little work sets forth. In these days of political unrest, when questions of momentous import as to the powers of federal and provincial authorities, and regarding our relations with the British Empire, of which we form a part, are being raised, it is well to get our feet upon firm historic ground, because we feel that Canada is now passing through one of the most critical stages in its history. This book should receive the special attention of teachers, because a mastery of it would equip them much more efficiently to deal with the subject of Canadian history, of which there is still a lamentable amount of ignorance abroad. The book contains just enough history in popular language to make the subject intelligible, is illustrated with sketches of public buildings, flags, coats of arms, autographs of leading statesmen, a small but comprehensive map of Canada, etc., together with a copy of that most important document, the British North America Act, under which the Dominion was constituted in 1867. We find also a chapter on school government in the various provinces, which is especially interesting at this juncture in public affairs. The closing words of the chapter on "The Duties of Canadian Citizens," which is well deserving of thoughtful attention, are as follows:—

"No system of government or of laws can of itself make a people virtuous and happy unless their rulers recognize in the fullest sense their obligations to the State and exercise their powers with prudence and unselfishness, and endeavor to elevate public opinion. A constitution may be as perfect as human agencies can make it and yet be relatively worthless, while the large responsibilities and powers entrusted to the governing body—responsibilities and powers not set forth in Acts of Parli-ment—are forgotten in view of party triumphant ambition, or pecuniary gain.
Laws," says Burke, "reach but a very little Constitute government how you please finally the greater part of it must depend upon the exercise of powers which are large to the prudence and upright ministers of State. Even all the usefulness of the laws depend upon them. V them your commonwealth is no bet-scheme upon paper, and not a livi effective organization."

In Canada, to quote the wordpoetess:

"As yet the waxen mould is
