QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

INTERESTS IN FARM.

I wrote you some time ago asking your advice on a property I had bought five years ago this spring. You answered in "The Farmer's Advocate" of February 15th, and said you could not give a decided answer till you would see the papers. I now send you the papers about it. Kindly answer, but please don't publish the papers.
Quebec.

Ans.—According to the copy sent us, if the only document in the case, you have ownership of the land and have mortgaged it to B (from whom you purchased it) for balance of purchase money. Subject to such mortgage, you have the right to sell the property; and neither B nor your sons are in a position to legally prevent your doing so. And we do not see that your sons have any legal interest in the farm, or that they would be legally entitled to share in the proceeds of sale thereof.

LIEN NOTE—WILL.

1. Is a lien note on a horse good? The note reads: "Full title not to pass to me until full payment of this note."
2. If a man refused to pay, what would be the legal proceedings?
3. Can a man of family will all his property to his wife?
4. If so, is it necessary to have executors?
Ontario.

Ans.—1. Yes, as against the maker of the note, and possibly also as against others.

2. The holder of the note might either sue the maker, after the note has fallen due, or retake possession of the animal, and, after retaining it for twenty days—to permit of its redemption by payment of principal, interest and costs and expenses of taking possession—sell same after giving five days' notice of sale.
3. Yes.

4. It is necessary to appoint at least one Executor; but the wife may be named as such in the will.
