Community Club's Horticultural Section

The Planting of Street Trees

Why have shade trees on our village streets at all? Would it not be rather an ugly place to live in if there were no trees, and that suggests the question, while the present conditions are real good why not improve them so as to make the most of the beautiful situation in which Waterdown is so fortunately placed? Let our readers critically examine the streets on which they reside as to tree conditions, and if they are not altogether satisfied then come to the Horticultural Section of your Community Club and its members will be glad to help as far as they can.

Every tree that is planted helps to beautify your own village, and the more beautiful a place is the more desirable it is to live in. An attractive town naturally brings people to live there and this means higher values to property and better business generally, with conditions improving in every way. It may be assumed that this is a feature that every one would like to see materialize.

As pointed out in a previous article trees can be procured by digging them from the woods around the village. Maples are probably the best where the street is not very wide, but where the street is fairly wide another of our native trees could be used to advantage, the American Elm, which matures into a beautifully majestic tree.

Care should be taken to plant trees of the same variety on the one street and these should be planted at uniform distances apart, and in an even line.

Maples should be planted at least forty feet apart, while the American Elm should have from forty five to fifty feet between them. A very strong reason for not planting them close is that the area of the root system of any tree is generally equal to the spread of its branches. Therefore if the branches of two trees meet their root systems will interlock, and it is important to take this into consideration, otherwise the provision of an adequate feeding area for the tree may be overlooked.

Teachers' Salaries

"The teacher in the county school, expounding lesson, sum and rule, and teaching children how to rise to heights where lasting honor lies, deserves a fat and handsome wage, for she's a triumph of this' age. No better work than hers is done beneath the good old shining sun. She builds the future of the State, she guides the youth who will be great, and we who do all things so well, and of our institutions yell, reward the teacher with a roll that brings a shudder to her soul. We have our coin done up in crates and gladly hand it to the skates who fuss around in politics and fool us with their time-worn tricks. If I were running this old land, I'd have a lot of statesmen canned and M. P. P's and folks like those who have to work for board and clothes, I'd put the lid on scores of snaps, and pour into the teachers' laps the wealth that now away is sinned for words and wiggle jaws and wind."
