ENLISTED AND VISITS FORMER HOME

Mr. Kenneth Sanford, son of Mr. J. W. Sanford, Coldbrook, arrived at Kentville on Tuesday and proceeded to his home at Coldbrook to visit his relatives. He has been absent in the Canadian West for about 8 years and this is his first visit home. He has recently been in Calgary and Didsbury and enlisted last May in the 187th Battalion. The Battalion has just arrived at Amherst to proceed overseas and Mr. Sanford had the opportunity to visit here. His brother, Phillip, is now in England with the 56th Battery at Witley Camp. Nova Scotia's contribution to the army is very large from her sons now residing in the West.

Earth shocks are believed to have developed a freak well in the Spa district south of Tulare, Calif. Within a few hours after the quakes an artesian well which has a depth of 1200 feet began to spout live fish. The fish are from 2 to 10 inches in length, and aside from the fact that they are blind, closely resemble the common lake trout.

Rev. F. H. Beals preached at Lawrencetown last Sunday.

BIG GAME IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

(1) A herd of caribou.
(2) Mountain goat near Banff.
(3) Grizzly bear.

OWING to its immense areas of forest and mountain, British Columbia has remained a stronghold for the wilder forms of big game, which at one time were fairly numerous also in Wyoming and Montana, but which have practically disappeared in the United States, owing to the advance of settlement and insufficient game protection. The heavy snowfall which makes the ten-thousand-foot-high peaks inaccessible in winter is the natural refuge of the grizzly bear, the mountain sheep and the mountain goat—beta and heads of which are three of the most prized trophies of the big game hunter, while in the unpopulated forests of the Kootenays and the Selkirk district the great antlered moose—the last surviving of the prehistoric giants—ranges undisturbed except for the bold spirits who with pack horses and canoes and guide come upon him unwary.

The moose of British Columbia are claimed as being the largest in North America. They are especially numerous in the northern interior of the province; they have a particular liking for the banks of the Findlay and Liard rivers. Excellent hunting can be had in the vicinity of Atlin, and also of Cassiar, north east of Quesnel Lake. As the moose was protected in the Kootenay district for a time, the animal is again becoming numerous there. Hunting the moose is one of the most attractive of sports, and happy is the hunter who succeeds in shooting one of these antlered monarchs of the forest.

Not less fascinating than the moose is the caribou, of which there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground caribou. The caribou develops to its greatest size at Cassiar. Not long ago an entry from this place won the gold medal at an exhibition in Vienna. Glacier, Athol (on the Kootenay Central Railway), Revelstoke, and Cranbrook are good points from which to start in search of caribou. Hunting districts in Lillooet can be reached from Ashcroft and Lytton.

Columbian or coast deer are found all along the west coast of British Columbia as far east as the Cascade Range and all through the Coast Range. British Columbia has an increasing number of mule deer. A deer of this variety also got a gold medal prize at the Vienna exhibition. Those deer are found over the whole of the interior of the province, but there are some spots which are more congenial to them than others; they are most plentiful in the Lillooet district. White tailed deer abound in East Kootenay.

The bighorn or rocky mountain sheep makes its home in the fastnesses of the Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountains. A bighorn is counted upon as one of the most valued prizes a hunter can obtain, for it is very difficult to get within shooting range. The bighorn is of a suspicious, timid nature, and can travel as far over the mountain peaks in a few minutes as a hunter can go in two hours. Epicures say that the flesh of the bighorn is the most delicious of the world's game. Its massive horns make a beautiful ornament. The best ground for hunting the bighorn is that portion of the Lillooet district roughly described as being north and south of the bridge at Chillooten River and east and west of the Fraser River at Chillooten Lake. The town of Lillooet is reached by stage from Lytton, Clinton or Ashcroft. Michel and Golden are good points from which to reach the Kootenay sheep country. The Cassiar country is easy of access.

Amongst the giant peaks of the Rockies we find the home of the Rocky Mountain goat. He is clad in a coat of soft fluffy white, is fast and fearless in his motions, and can travel fleetly over precipices where man could not attempt to climb. As a fighter the goat is wonderfully brave and can use his sharp horns to great advantage for himself and destruction for the dog that faces him.

The sportsman visitor to British Columbia will find a delightful climate and general environs which will appeal favourably to him. Guides can be easily procured.

The Canadian Pacific Railway gives a splendid service to the most convenient starting and outfitting points. The game is protected by excellent laws, and the guides, who are expert packers, are themselves keen sportsmen and familiar with the haunts of the animals they help to hunt.

In addition to the game already mentioned the hunter in British Columbia may chance to have a shot at panther, elk, wildcat, antelope or wolf.

LETTER FROM NURSE STRONG

No. 2 Stationary Hospital, Boulogne, France.

Dear Mrs. Archibald:—It is with great pleasure I tell you of the arrival of your shipment of boxes of preserved fruit. Never was gift more welcome! Yesterday we opened and used one box. Today we have very many casualties from the 4th Canadian; so your gift will just come in for them. Is it not a great piece of luck to have it ready for them?

As most of these patients are very ill they may not be able to express their appreciation by writing; but the appreciation and gratitude are there just the same, perhaps more, than if they had strength to write a letter telling you about it.

We have lately had two new huts added to our equipment, each holding 84 patients. Today as often, we have more patients than beds, but no one seems to mind. I say to a man 'I'm sorry we can't do this or that for you, or, haven't this or that to give you. With a road smile he answers. Oh, this is champion, sister, luxury after lying in a shell hole!

This is the cheery way they look at everything. There's something about it all that is making orderful men of them—no room for ppetiness.

Did I tell you of the Recreation Hut given us by the Canadian Red Cross, which we have had to use as a bed ward? It has surely been a God-send to us.

I shall not try to thank you and your friends for all you have done for us—I do not need thanks—you understand too well!

Sincerely yours,
Annie C. Strong,
Nov. 21st, 1916.

ANOTHER N. S. COAL MINE FIRE

New Glasgow, N. S., Dec. 3.—Fire broke out in the pillars at No. 5 Albion mine. By prompt action on the part of the officials and the hearty co-operation of the men the section was hurriedly and securely walled off, the work being finished at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The mine was idle yesterday and will remain so for several days, but it is anticipated that work will be resumed by the middle of the week. It would be a very serious matter if any great delay was caused in the working of coal is a serious problem.
