After the confirmation of the young converts of Samaria by Peter and John, Phillip's work there is done. Mark his prompt obedience. He walks, runs, acts, lives, in the power of the sainting the control of the sainting the sainting that the sainting of the spirit as Jesus Christ's soldiermessenger-missionary, not as pastor, preacher or bishop. The conversion of this African Premier, this religious Jew, is a contrast to such characters, for generally publicans and harlots are more easily lead into the kingdom than they are-Math. 21, 31-32. But he carried the Scriptures in his pocket and studied them; like Cornelius and his household, he was ripe for conversion. An offer to ride, a gospel opportunity to the living in the spirit, and souls are to be won travelling; why don't we read our Bible on the cars and preach Christ and Him crucified? The lesson teaches spiritual promptness. The baptism and confession of changed faith, hope and live fills and fits him to be a joyful evangelist in dark Africa.
