Is Dr. Chase your Doctor. Over a generation Dr. Chase has, by means of his famous Receipt Book and great family medicines, been winning the confidence and esteem of the people of this continent.

There's some things I can't understand, said Hal. If I get my feet wet I get cold in my head; but I can't get my head twice a day and never get cold in my feet.

When residing in Japan Professor Mitas had a special earthquake bed, room attached to his house. This building rested at each of its pillar-like foundations upon a layer of a quarter of an inch of castron shot between two flat iron plates.

By this means the building remained at rest while the ground beneath it moved rapidly to and fro.

An old captain and his mate went into a restaurant near the docks and ordered dinner. The waiter placed a plate of curries before them.

"I say, you fellow, what's this stuff?" "Soup, sir," replied the waiter.

"Soup?" shouted the old sea-dog. "Just that, sir," replied the waiter. "I know it, dear," said his wife, "but don't you remember that Aladdin could make more than that in five minutes by simply rubbing an old lamp? I'd so much rather you'd do something of that kind, Will!"

"Well," exclaimed the genial proprietor, "the hair in the ice-cream comes from the shaving of the bar. And I suppose the hair in the honey came off the comb. But I don't understand about the hair in the apple sauce. I thought those apples myself and every one was a baldie."

Warning to Country Girls.

The following note, which we have received from a thoroughly reliable source, ought to open the eyes of girls from country homes, as well as their unsuspecting parents, to the snares laid for the innocent by deceivers and seducers of our cities.

One evening last week a nice looking girl from the country arrived in Halifax by train. A stranger and alone she fortunately asked information from a railway official. He asked her where she wished to go, when she produced a piece of paper on which was written in a good hand without a signature the street and number of one of the gates of hell.

The girl had evidently no idea of the kind of place to which she might have gone had she sought information from another than the gentleman, to whom she spoke. He asked her if she had any luggage. She said no, she had been told that the people of the house would provide her with clothes.

The official promptly sent her to Mrs. Egan, the faithful and large-hearted agent of the S. P. C. So this girl, for the time at least, was delivered from the snare. When will decent people in the country awake to the danger and cruelty of sending girls unguarded to the city?—Presbyterian Witness.

Culture in Dress. Culture in dress manifests itself in suitability of station, occupation, season, hour, place and personal appearance; and she whose taste can touch suitability in the larger waters, is not likely to fall short when it comes to the details of adornment.

She will not aim at style, smartness, affect, picturesque, fashion, nor any of those things which, when exclusively aimed at, or aimed at for themselves, are so misleading; but she will touch all simply by expressing her own good taste—for good taste is effective, appealing, and harmonious, and always in fashion among the best people, whether they be rich or poor.

We blame no woman, old or young, rich or poor, for loving pretty clothes. A feminine creature who takes no delight in fabrics and tints, to whom a jewel is not something almost as wondrously lovely as a flower, who has not a thrill of innocent, half self-congratulation, half-artistic, impersonal pleasure in looking nice, as had properly left out in the making, but that a something which, if properly trained and directed, would have contributed to the necessary frugality of life.

The Deep Breathing Cure. A boy who was consumptive and was rapidly going along the road to the grave was taken in hand by one who understood deep breathing, and the importance of proper ventilation of food, etc. He was used to understand precisely why deep breathing was of such vital importance, and he took a lively interest in his own cure.

He was fourteen years old. In a very few weeks the change was remarkable. He began to get firm flesh on his poor little limbs, his chest developed well, and healthy color came into his cheeks. His eyes, which were always covered with sties, became perfectly free from them, and in three months or less there was no sign of consumption in him. I may say he was only treated one or two weeks for half an hour.—Fall Mail Gazette.

Make Your Hens Lay. Feed judiciously. Never fatten the pullet or hen. Give them all the liberty you can by day.

All the warm shelter by night and in temperate weather. Make them work for their food. Dig up the ground a little. Bury the food, or throw among straw. Give cut green bone twice a week. Hot mash in morning. Hard grain at night.

All the green vegetables, carrots, turnips, mangold obtainable. Clean water every day. Nice dust bath. Then if hatched at right time you will have the birds earning money for you in the hard frosty times.

Faith in Apples. A member of the local house has a good story about a Norfolk apple farm. There are lots of sandy farms to be had there cheap and one of these was picked up for a few hundred dollars a few years ago and planted with apples. By and by what was thought to be a sucker Englishman came along and exchanged $10,000 for the apple farm. The neighbors bewailed his fate and lavished their pity and sympathy on the unfortunate Englishman. Last fall the Englishman sold $7500 worth of apples off his farm, and is holding the property at $30,000. His neighbors are now wondering who were the suckers.—Toronto World.

The old-fashioned way of doing a weak stomach, or stimulating the heart or kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments, the weak lungs or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, heart, or kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail these organs must surely follow. These vital nerves are leading drooplets everywhere to dispose and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. That it in a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

Bicycles are rapidly coming back into popular favor, and the demand this year being five times what it was five years ago. We have planned for it in two ways—by getting the very best English wheel we can for popular selling, and saving to our customers all intermediate profits by filling orders direct by mail instead of through agents. In this way we can offer

$50 Wheels for $25 and give better satisfaction all round. The quality of the wheels is all right—only the best materials used and only skilled mechanics employed in construction. The equipment is right up-to-date and the machines throughout as such as we can thoroughly recommend. We sell automobiles as well as bicycles and our plan is to make wheels serve as a good advertisement to the entire business. Send for illustrated folder.

To Make Canada More Moral. Representatives of the Moral and Social Reform Association of Canada are now in Ottawa interviewing the Minister of Justice and other members of the government to urge several important amendments to the Criminal Code pertaining to matters of morality. They ask that professional betting at race tracks in any form, be made illegal; that the laws against adultery be made more stringent; that the penalty for bringing girls or women to Canada for immoral purposes be increased from a maximum imprisonment of two years to one of five years, with a flogging added, and finally that more stringent regulations be made to prohibit the sale of immoral picture postcards and books.

Miss Hobson was most popular with the two young unmarried members of Centerville's school board. They did not propose to have any change of teachers in District Number Three.

You think Miss Hobson pays quite enough attention to discipline? suggested one of the elderly, married school committee men one day.

"Discipline! Why of course she pays a great deal of attention to it," asserted Ed. Porter, hastily.

"We never had any one else begin to pay as much," said Henry Lane. Why one afternoon I was in there at Number Three, and Miss Hobson spent the whole time—every minute of it—preserving order in that school room.—Youth's Companion.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Baltimore, Md.—For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all-gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I got as though a new life had been given to me. I am now recommending it to all my friends.—Mrs. W. S. FORD, 135 Lansdowne St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, fatigues, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

Rev. James Chalmers and the Drink Curse. Reading the extremely interesting life of the martyred missionary, James Chalmers, by Richard Lovett, M. A., I came upon some passages which all Temperance workers must be thankful to read as evincing how ardently he espoused, in his work among the heathen, the work they are called upon to do at home. I quote first from the autobiographical pages, descriptive of his work in Rangoon, where they (himself and wife) landed in 1857.

"In that paradise of the Pacific there was one fearful curse, strong drink, and that we tried to combat. I turned policeman and used to find out where the meetings for drink were held. My experience is that native chiefs and policemen are not fit in themselves to carry out laws, but you put on a spur for a fortnight and then things drift back and are left to become worse than before. During Makea Abela's time we succeeded in putting it down to a considerable extent, but he was a great hindrance, being himself much addicted to drink, both foreign and native. Thinking that if they were allowed to drink their orange beer openly at their meals, a stop would be put to the large gatherings where all got drunk, and the orgies can only be described as beastly, I proposed this to Makea. But he decidedly opposed it saying it would never do, as there would be no rejoicing then at all. He would not give his consent to the plan. Many of the metisago (independent landholders) were on our side but without Makea and the other chiefs they were useless. I remember once getting some of the inferior chiefs together and going on a deputation to Makea and Maurangi, who was chief justice and had lapsed from church membership and from his social position through drink. They both received us as well as listened to all we had to say. One of the metisago spoke very seriously to Abela, and Maurangi pulled him up by asking in a bit of a song 'Whence is Makea?' and the old metisago replied in song, 'From heaven he came,' and then Maurangi wound up with, 'Who then can speak?' and we returned, forced thus to remember that Makea was beyond and above all law and all human beings. In the light of no accident like this one could understand how and why in heathen times anyone who crossed even his shadow were clubbed to death instantly. Abela died suddenly and was mourned greatly, for though he was a great drinker he was exceedingly kind to all, and especially to the missionary. . . . After Makea's death, Takau, wife of Ugauru, Abela, was sent for and they both were elected to the position of head chief. She is an excellent woman and has done much good, but has not succeeded in putting down the drink. All natives can be bought by the white man, and so they wink at grog being landed. A silk dress given as a present, a few bottles of grog or beer, or wine as medicine, given in the right quarter, will know to all traders, and the island may be swamped with drink. If the chiefs wished to stop the curse they could have done so long ago, for the law passed in conjunction with the British Resident was that no native could get drunk unless he had a permit signed by Makea or one of the chiefs. But this law led to the selling of opium, and thus the drink traffic became legalized, and the state of the island worse than ever."

Again, from a long letter sent home after he had fairly settled down to work—"That curse of all curses has come to this island—strong drink. There is a law against its being brought ashore, but unprincipled smugglers manage to smuggle it and sell it to the natives. The effects are fearful and heart-rending. I believe were thinking men at home to see the effect of drink among these natives, they would never taste another drop, but would rise up to a man and would cry shame upon those men who not only break the laws of a weak people, but also give them in exchange for their labor, money or coffee, a poison which is destroying their life. The churches have suffered terribly from it. Our young men have given themselves up to intoxication and one after another falls a victim. All the people are sorrowful so that fire water takes effect sooner upon them."
