

MUST KEEP CLEAN YARD.

An Offender Fined $10 at Police Court To-day.

No Case Against Brunt—Whips Were Given to Him.

Magistrate and License Inspector Conferred re Indian List.

George Brunt appeared before Magistrate Jelfs at the Police Court this morning charged with stealing four whips from Louis Carr. Last Saturday he was seen by P. C. Xaxley walking around the streets with unsteady steps, without a hat, and carrying four whips in his hand. The officer accosted him, but Brunt was unable to give any satisfactory account of where he had got the whips, saying that they had been given to him. He was arrested and appeared in court Monday morning. He pleaded not guilty, but did not now the name of the man who gave him the whips, and was remanded until enquiries could be made. P. C. Xaxley visited the whip dealers and learned that a man named Carr had bought four whips on Saturday. Carr was at the police court this morning and identified the whips, but he had given them to Brunt. When the Crown enquired why this unusual conduct Carr replied that he had been taking a drop or so during the day and was not his usual self. "Just had enough to reveal your natural generous self," remarked Crown Attorney Washington. Brunt was discharged. For not keeping his yard in a proper sanitary condition, Saul Fauman, 91 Hunter street east, was fined $10 and told to obey the Board of Health officers in the future. Several complaints had been made about the condition of this yard by the neighbors and Fauman had been warned time and again to clean it up, said the health inspector, but had neglected to do so. Jonathan Robinson, West Flamboro, was fined $2 for selling milk without a license.

John McDonald, Forest avenue, and Peter Clark, Sincere street, drank themselves into a happy state of bliss last night, but a night spent in No. 3 police station is enough to wear off the worst kind of a jag and both were in a more respectable sobriety when they stepped in the prisoners' box this morning. Both pleaded guilty and were fined $2. McDonald's name is on the prohibited list, but the magistrate says that until a proper notice is served on the hotelkeepers it is not strictly legal to fine these men more than the ordinary drunkards. Up to the present time no notice has been served on the hotelkeepers. They are merely given a list and told not to supply any to the men whose names appear thereon. The magistrate had a talk with the new license inspector and it is likely that this matter will be fixed in the near future.

At the Very Hour.

A correspondent relates a story concerning a gentleman who went out to India and obtained a post on a plantation, leaving his wife and family in England, until one day when working on the plantation he was struck for a short time by his hand on the handle of his spade. While he was standing in this way a bird alighted on his hand. Naturally he was very surprised and as he moved his hand the bird flew away. He proceeded with his work and forgot the incident. When the next mail from England arrived, however, it was painfully recalled to his memory. His wife had died unexpectedly, her death taking place not only on the same day, but at the very hour the bird perched upon his hand.—From the Birmingham Mail.

ARE RESTLESS.

Some Tigers Would Like to See the Executive Get Busy.

Some members of the champion Tigers are wondering if their services on the gridiron last fall, in winning two championships, are not going to be recognized by the club. For the past five or six months it has been announced over and over that the Executive Committee will meet to arrange for a presentation and banquet. The committee has had several meetings lately to arrange for the athletic meet for the benefit of Bobby Kerr, but the players have had no intimation that souvenirs have been ordered for them.

Deadheads on a Russian Railway.

The Russian Minister of Ways and Communications recently requested the management of the Nikolai Railway (St. Petersburg-Moscow) to furnish him with a list of passengers travelling without tickets over the line during 1908. The return is now published. From this it appears that 22,834 so-called "dead-heads" used the line during the twelve months, some without tickets, but the number with passes irregularly obtained. Of these passes 716 were confiscated and the bearers compelled to pay their fares, and £1849 was recovered by legal process. Seventeen guards and other officials were dismissed for collusion in the frauds.—London Evening Standard.

would not give the names of the witnesses who will be examined at the next session of the inquest. He said he was not in possession of that information, and could not make it public if he had. Florence Kinrade will certainly be the first witness and her examination is likely to take up the best part of the session. She will probably be followed by other members of the family; then Jimmie Baum, the Virginian actor, and Detective Pender, the Pinkerton, who conducted the investigation in the south, and made two searches of the Kinrade house.

ARGUMENT CONTINUED

Fine Points of Law and Fact Before the Judges.

When the argument over the warrant was continued before the Divisional Court yesterday afternoon, Mr. Staunton pointed out that Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright admitted the fact that the subpoena was served upon Miss Kinrade in this city.

"It's a terrible thing to blast the reputation of this girl and her family," began Mr. Staunton.

"That is just what we have nothing to do with that now," said the Chancellor.

proper course to put in an affidavit to show what further evidence the Crown expects from the witness. Why should he be recalled?"

"We haven't examined her for four weeks, and in the meantime we have found additional information."

"Well, you may put in an affidavit setting forth your reasons for recalling her. Can you give us the details of this information? Don't you think the Crown ought to consent to say upon which points they wish to question her?"

"Not at all, my Lord," said Mr. Cartwright.

"Well, you see there is an affidavit put in saying she has told all she knows. Don't you think you ought to put in an affidavit? You know the custom is that when a witness is sworn and counsel wishes to recall the witness, the custom is to explain to the trial judge upon what point or points you wish the witness to be recalled?"

"Surely," returned Mr. Cartwright, "we cannot be expected to disclose our information as yet to the defence."

"The Crown is not to be accused," Mr. Cartwright said. "My learned friend is wrong. I think it is he who indulges in wit and abuse and abuses counsel."

"Is it your usual custom, Mr. Cartwright, to examine witnesses until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning?" asked Chancellor Boyd.

"The circumstances were unusual, my Lord."

MR. MACKENZIE'S ARGUMENT. Mr. J. B. Mackenzie rose to add a few words to what the Deputy Attorney-General had said.

"You're on the wrong side of this case," said the Chancellor, jealously, referring to Mr. Mackenzie taking the Crown side of the question this time. Mr. Mackenzie is generally against the crown in certiorari cases.

"I should think only search warrants, my Lord."

"But what if they dealt with the warrant in question?" asked his Lordship.

"The Legislature cannot unsettle the law of centuries," replied the lawyer.

Mr. Mackenzie submitted a number of cases, some of them dated in the seventeenth century, which in his opinion bore on the case.

over what sort of a weapon it was. A London paper suggests that a Maxim firearm might have been used. It was recently tested in New York, and is said to have demonstrated that it is capable of fulfilling every claim made for it. With smokeless powder this new attachment leaves the marksman inaudible as well as invisible.

As everyone who has read anything about the case knows, smokeless powder was not used. The windows were open when the police arrived, and this would account for there being little or no smoke in the house by that time.

Any kind of a modern firearm would have driven the bullets through the dead girl's body, instead of forcing her slayer to riddle her with shots.
