THE GREYHOUND.

The Name Misapplied to Dogs not Grey at All. [Good Words.]

Up to about 300 years ago "greyhounds" were the shaggy, gray-colored dogs used in the chase of large game. After that the name was transferred, sufficiently absurdly, to the black, white and yellow, but generally spotted or bicolor, and never gray, dog that is now so popular for coursing hares. It is very odd that anyone, writing about the dog, should have insisted upon so obvious an absurdity. On the contrary, a great many writers who have written very wisely about the word "grey" have tried to explain away its simplest meaning by referring to Celtic, Gaelic and Baxon roots; but, considering these two animals were called indifferently "grey dogs" or "grey hounds"—in two words—when our language first came to be written, and that in those days "dog" and "hound" were absolutely synonymous, it seems to me as great a waste of wisdom to try and prove that "grate," "gray," or "grey," when it is joined with dog or hound, meant anything else but grey, as to say that grey-by means a fly of princely extraction, or grey-bred a champion beard.

The Dying Year.

Ring solemn chimes, ye midnight bells. As o'er the land your music swells; Reminding man that his career Shall end, just like the dying year.

Ring softly, life is but a dream, Or like an ever rolling stream That hurries on its mighty way, And time is passing on apace.

Ring for thy tones prophetic are. They bring glad tidings from afar; The year may die amidst grief and pain, Yet from its womb is born again.

Time was, time is, and time shall be, Till blended in eternity. And years shall die and live again, For nothing mortal can remain.

Then ring your softly solemn chimes. Make men forget their hates and crimes; And as your music fills the skies, Let nobler aspirations rise.

Shoes FOR THE New Year Festivities

It looks a good deal like an old-fashioned Canadian winter. You cannot afford to be without comfortable footwear, no matter how well the furrows may work. Our shoe bargains do their own talking.

If anyone is "out of sorts" in the house, it may be all the fault of badly fitting shoes. A comfortable shoe is conducive to good temper. We make it very easy on the pocket book as well as easy for the foot.

They are satisfied that he is merely taking the short vacation which he had spoken of and promised himself some time ago.

He also brought discredit on himself when, in order to get out of a hole, he charged the reporters of the city with being "the land of the living dead."
