Making Him Responsible.

During the debate on the address Dr McMahon, M.P.P. for North Wentworth. drew a rather lugubrious picture of the ufacturing town of Dundas. This hamlet among the hills has a strong conservative element and its municipal council is twothirds tory. When they heard of their member's conduct in the house they were filled with wrath and at the next meeting of the town council they passed a resolu-tion calling upon Dr. MacMahon to retract his statement in the legislature and apologize to the town. Dr. McMahon has evidently put his foot in it. Even the Banner, his strong supporter, reluctantly admits that the doctor went too far altogether. The manufacturing interests of Dundas pulled through the crisis wonderfully and they feel the action of their member keenly. It is a great pity that any member of parliament should stoop to exaggerate the depression and suffering in his native town for the contemptible purpose of making a point against his political enemies. It is often done, but this is the first case in which an official body of his constituents took, writed action. apologize to the town. Dr. McMahon has

In another column our correspondent Querist calls attention to a system that is not only a disgrace to the city, but also to the government, to the province, and even to the whole country, inasmuch as the inhabitants of Ontario are Canadians. We refer, and our correspondent refers, to the abominable whisky spy system. Its method of working is too notorious to need entering into. Mr. Dexter will perhaps say that no other way than by the purchasing of men's souls can be bring the offender to justice. Then would it be better for the offender occasionally to escape than that the law should make more sinners. Morality is not served by the system. Sir. I have been given to understand that in a recent issue of a paper published in Toronto which is, I believe, called the carrier of the agonies. My thirst was intense and a good portion of the time I was wholly unconscious. When I did recover my senses I suffered so severely than the cries could be heard for the time I was wholly unconscious. When I did recover In another column our correspondent ners. Morality is not served by the system in force. On the contrary, it is calculated to create an abhorrence for the law and its enactors, and an unwholesome sympathy for the law-breaker. To talk about the suborning of spies as witnesses as being un-British is absurd. It is no more as being un-British is absurd. It is no more un-British than un-Canadian. It is immoral, and, being such, is unworthy of the whole world and of the days we live in. If Mr. Dexter is so poor an administrator that he can enforce the law in no other way than he can enforce the law in no other way than by the employment of such degraded creatures as these spies usually are, then he is unfitted for his position. It is often only a venial offence to sell liquor contrary to the law, but it is a heinous fault to lie and commit perjury. It is a fault that offends both God and man. It is a fault that destroys not only those actually committing it, but also those causing it to be committed. It is, moreover, a fault for which there should not be the least excuse as long as policemen patrol nearly every street.

The enterprise of De Brazza on the Congo has turned out a miserable failure, as was expected from the very beginning. France has always been jealous of England as a colonizing power, and the success of Stanley on the Congo induced her to back the shallow Italian in his enterprise. But the prestige of France in uncivilized countries is as nothing with that of England. The savages on the Congo had never heard Abyssinian and Ashantee wars, and the people to advocate the idea of abolishing name of England was potent with them.

The consequence was that while they are so poorly ventilated, and omit so foul an odor as at present. It is strictly necesfound it was best to treat with Stanley sury for the members to take some stim they amused themselves shooting at De vive in that foul atmosphero. Trusting that some private member will take the Brazza. Thus the baseless fabric of the vision of a French colony in the Congo country has tumbled to the ground.

Whisky Informers.

SIR: Is it not a miserable exhibition of give evidence which has been obtained only by falsehood and deceit? Yet one never reads of a whisky haul at court but the mass of evidence presented has been obtained by those means. An informer asks for a bottle of wine for a sick man, and under that plea obtains what otherwise he would not get, and then informs on the seller for breaking the law. Of course the seller should not have broken the law, and if the should not nave proken the law, and if the offence be proved it is only just he should be fined; but does not public morality suffer by this kind of hunting for evidence? And would it not be better to confine evil dence to what can legitimately be gathered without deceit and falsehood being used to

The Parliament Buildings.

To the Editor of The World. SIR: Now that the Ontario session is going on, it would be proper time to refer to one piece of legislation that has not been foreshadowed by the speech from the throne. I refer to the advisability, nay, the necessity of new parliament buildings. It is a standing disgrace to the fair fame of this noble province, whose capital is the beautiful city of Toronto, to hold the sessions of parliament and have the effects. sions of parliament and have the offices of the government in such unsightly, un-healthy and ridiculously-constructed build-ings, as far as the architecture is concerned.

Captain W. H. Nicholls, formerly in her majesty's service, is a man well advanced that he had had a pass sent to him but that in years, who has evidently seen much of he scorned to use it and had returned it the world. Endowed by nature with a dure hardships under which many men would have succumbed. Through all privation and exposure he preserved his constitution unimpaired. A number of years ago, however, he began to feel a strange undermining of his life. He noticed that he had less energy than formerly, that his appetite was uncertain and changing, that he was unaccountably weary at certain times and correspondingly energetic at others; that his head pained him, first in front and then at the base of the brain, and that his heart was unusually irregular in its action. All these troubles he attributed to some passing disorder and gave them little attention, but they seemed to increase in violence continually. To the writer he said:

"I never for a moment thought these things amounted to anything serious, and I gave them little, if any, thought, but I felt myself growing weaker all the while and could in no way account for it."

"Did you take no steps to check these symptoms?"

"Very little, if any. I thought they were only temporary in their nature, and would soon pass away, but they did not pass away, and kept increasing. Finally, one day, after more than a year had passed, I noticed that my feet and ankles were beginning to swell, and that my face under the eyes appeared puffy. This indication increased until my body began to fill with water, and finally swelled to enormous proportions. I was afflicted with acute rheumatic pains, and was fearful at times that it would attack my heart. I consulted one of our most prominent physicians and he gave me no hope of ever recovering. He said that I might live several months, but my condition was such that neither myself nor any of my family had the slightest hope of my recovery. In this condition a number of months passed by, during which time I had to sit constantly in an easy chair, not being able to lie easy chair, not being able to lie down, lest I should choke to death. The Late U. E. Club.

To the Editor of The World.

Sir: I have been given to understand that in a recent issue of a paper published in Toronto which is, I believe, called the Evening News, certain references are made to me as secretary of the United Empire club.

Will you permit me through your columns to state that I was never secretary of that club from its inception to its close. Its secretaries ware Mr. Author Compbell.

Its secretaries ware Mr. Author Compbell.

Sight pains I had at first experienced increased to most terrible agonies. My thirst was intense and a good portion of the time I was wholly unconscious. When I did recover my senses I suffered so severely that my cries could be heard for mearly a mile. No one can have any idea of the agony I endured. I was unable to eat or even swallow fluids. My strength entirely deserted me and I was so exhaused that I prayed day and night for death. The doctors could not relieve me and I was left in a condition to die and that, too, of Bright's disease of the kidneys in its most terrible form. I think I should have died shad I not learned of a gentleman who treatment which entirely cured him. I accordingly began and at once felt a change for the better going on in my system. In the course of a week the swelling had gone from my abdomen and diminished all over my body and I felt like another man. I continued the treatment and am happy to say that I was entirely cured through the wonderful, almost miraculous power of Warner's Sate Cure, which I consider the most valuable discovery of modern times."

"And you feel apparently well now?"

"Yes, indeed. I am in good health, eat heartily, and both the doctors and my friends are greatly surprised and gratified at my remarkable restoration, after I was virtually in the grave. My daughter, who has been terribly troubled with a pain in her back caused by kidney trouble has also been cured by means of this same great remedy, and my family and myself have constituted ourselves a kind of missionary society for supplying the poor of our society for supplying the poor of our neighborhood with the remedy which has been so invaluable to us."

As the writer was returning home he reflected upon the statements of the noble old man with whom he had conversed, and was impressed not only with the truth of his assertions, but also with the sincerity of all his acts. And he could not but wish that the theorems when the statement of the noble old man with whom he had conversed, and was impressed not only with the truth of his assertions, but also with the statement of the statement of the statement of the noble old man with whom he had conversed, and was impressed not only with the statement of the statement that the thousands who are suffering with minor troubles, which become so serious unless taken in time, might know of Captain Nicholl's experience and the manner in which he was saved. And that is the cause of this article."
