MONDAY MORNING. OCT. 6, 1884.

PHILADELPHIA'S BIG FIRE. A Conflagration in the Quaker City Causes a Less of Half a Million Dol-storage warehouse was burned this morning and nine adjacent dwelling houses were destroyed by the falling walls. The total loss will reach $500,000, on which there is an insurance of $150,000. The store house was a six story building and every floor was filled with household goods, 600 different families having effects stored there. The fire's origin, which is unknown, was discovered on the fourth floor. The flames made rapid headway and in a short time the three upper flats were a burning mass. Great volumes of smoke rolled out of the middle storage warehouse was burned this morn-

Paris, Oct. 5.—Barrere, French diplomatic agent at Cairo, has raised new disputes concerning the vacancy made in the judgeship of the mixed tribunal at Alexan dria by the transfer of the French Judge Bellet to the court of appeal. Barrere insists that another Frenchman be appointed, but this the English refuse. La Paix, Grevy's organ, commenting on the reported alliance between France and Germany, says: "To make France strong she must not be isolated from Europe, even if that implies common action with Germany. The French government understand this and cannot be reproached therefor."

Black dress silk worth $1.25 for 80 cents at the Bon Marche. A Secularist's Burial.

Charles Watts and a delegation from the Toronto secular society visited Alton Saturday to assist in the funeral of the late Mathew Algie. A large number of neigh-bors and friends from abroad assembled to pay the last respects to the deceased. The ceremony took place at the grave and was conducted wholly in accordance with the principles of the secular faith. It was deceased's last request that his brother William would say a few words over his dead body. William Algie delivered an address that deeply touched the hearts of all present and made impressions that will long be remembered. Charles Watts followed with a few feeling and impressive remarks. The foresters, who marched in a body to the grave, then concluded the ceremony by reading a part of the burial service contained in their ritual.

A DYING MAN'S REQUEST.

Let My Brother Know of My Death"— Patrick Donegan's End.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday an elderly, well-dressed man was observed to fall in a faint in front of 18 Power street. When he had somewhat recovered he complained to the people who had gathered round of a pain at the heart, and asked to be driven to Noblett's lodging house, York stitution about 11 a.m. yesterday. He drew his pension last Wednesday, and sent some portion of it to a sister in the old country. The police removed the body to

Some Tall Swearing. The first witness heard before the bribery ommission Saturday was E. J. S. Vicars. He had seen Hardy and Fraser walking on Wellington street the Thursday before the immortal 17th of March, and heard Hardy say, "If our little scheme with Balfour works out we will fix them." Mr. Blako works out we will fix them." Mr. Blako wanted the witness' record, and Vicars after some fencing said he was helping his father, who is a clergyman and an agent for the spread of christianity among the Jews. Witness added that Mr. Blake ought to know him, as he had collected a subscription from the honorable gentleman. Vicars further described himself as a conservative, remarking, "If you can get a more out and-out tory than I am, I would like to make his acquaintance," Robert McKim said that his evidence as given in the police court was correct, and the evidence was accordingly put in. Christopher Bunting was invited to cross-examine the witness, but refused to do so in the absence of his (Bunting's) counsel. A. S. Hardy and C. F. Fraser denied that any such expression had passed between them as that night on the Santa Fe railroad struck a cross tie placed on the track near Emporia junction. The engine pushed the cross tie between the guard rail and the outside rail on a bridge crossing a small stream and passed over safely. The freight train following was thrown from the track by the obstruction, wrecking the engine and care. The fireman was crushed and killed under the engine. The engineer was slightly wounded. It is supposed the cross tie was put on the track for the purpose of wrecking a passenger train.

McKim said that his evidence as given in the police court was correct, and the evidence was correct, and the encion the encion of his (Bunting's) counsel. A. S./Hardy and C. F. The Queen Street Subway. Workmen were busy all day yesterday JERSEY CITY, Oct. 5.—Geo. Bates, a ship laying the girders of the two crossings of subway. A large force of men were at work and the girders were placed in position before evening. All that remains to be done now is for the earth that is under these two crossings to be removed. The walls of the subway have been comleted; the sidewalks have to be put down pleted; the sidewalks have to be put down, the pavement laid, and the sewers and water and gas pipes adjusted. It ought not to be long before traffic can pass under the tracks instead of over them. The work will cost well on to $50,000 irrespective of what the railways pay for their bridges, which are four in number. When this project is completed the question of the King street subway will come up, with ingressed prominence as it will no doubt creased prominence, as it will no doubt form part of the scheme for the annexing of Parkdale.

The notice DULUTH, Oct. 5. -A freight train on the given the men had been only short, and Northern Pacific road was thrown from the the muster was accordingly rather smaller than usual. There were, however, about 250 in the ranks, while the band, fifes and drums, turned out fifty-eight strong. Col. Grasett was in command. The regiment proceeded by way of Grosvenor and Yonge streets to Holy Trinity church, where a very instructive sermon was preached by Rev. John Pearson, and a collection taken up for the benefit of the organ fund of the church. The battalion afterwards marched along Yonge and King streets to the armory. The playing of the band was much admired by the crowds on the streets.

Old Reliable Conductors Between 250 and 300 railway conductors from all parts of the United States and Canada will be in town this week to attend the annual convention of the Old Reliable Insurance Conductors, which meets in the city council chamber Wednesday and Thursday. This institution is separate from the Order of Railway Conductors, and its meetings are open to the public. The local knights of the punch, under the chairmanship of R. A. Purdon, will give the visitors a royal reception, the principal feature of which will be a conversazione at Horticultural gardens Wednesday night. As J. Convey was going out Dundas street towards Carleton junction Friday night with a load of building material he overtook two men, who asked him for a ride. The men got into the wagon, and after going a short distance suddenly attacked Mr. Convey and knocked him insensible. They then took $150 out of his pocket, threw him into a shed near by and

FERDINAND DITTMAR'S SUICIDE.

An Inventor, Linguist and Professor, Severs an Artery and Bleeds to Death. A German by the name of Ferdinand Dittmarr, who has for some time past poarded at the Moran house, Kingston road, committed suicide Saturday afternoon by severing the main artery of his arm. About 3 o'clock he told the landlord arm. About 3 o'clock he told the landlord he was going to his room to write letters and asked that he be not disturbed. About 5 o'clock the landlord went up with a note for him. On knocking at the door he received no answer, and found it fastened on the inside. Becoming alarmed he burst open the door, and saw Dittmar lying in a pool of blood on the floor. By his side lay an open penknife and the blood was slowly welling from a large gash in his arm. He was at once laid on a bed and medical assistance summoned, but he breathed his Queen Street Methodist Church Re Crowds were turned away from the reopening services of the Queen street methodist church yesterday, unable to gain admission. An extension of seventeen feet has been added to the length of the church, and the whole inside of the church taken out and new floors, new pews, new carpets and a new gallery, circular shape, substituted. The extension, besides adding greatly to the length of the church, contains the minister's vestry, church vestry and parlors, and the organ has been moved from the north end of the church to the south, directly behind the pulpit. The pulpit is a splendid specimen of the carver's art. It is in the Norman style, and took first prize at the last exhibition. The ceiling has been painted, frescoed and decorated, and stained glass windows have been put in throughout the church. There is connected with the church a choir of over fifty voices, conducted by John Baxter, which sang several anthems in good style yesterday. Rev. T. W. Jeffrey preached in the morning and Rev. Manly Benson in the afternoon. The pulpit was occupied in the evening by Rev. W. W. Carson of Hamilton. dist church yesterday, unable to gain ad-

A Batch of Burglaries. The men who shot at Policeman Geddes early Saturday morning have not been found. When observed by Policeman Charles Jarvis they had just emerged from Morrison, Taylor & Co.'s warehouse, 77 Front street east, where they burst the safe open and abstracted $70 in cash and some papers. The papers were subse-quently found in a vacant lot at the rear. Policemen Archer searched for traces of the thieves yesterday. He found two lane adjoining the premises. These had doubtless been used in cracking the safe. Burglars broke into H. A. Taylor's house at 21 Isabella street Friday night and stole jewelry, clothing and other goods to the value of about $70. The housebreakers at Hessin's did not make a large haul. They refreshed them selves with candies, but got no money.

The Osgoode Society. The first regular meeting of the session of the Osgoode legal and literary society was held Saturday night, a large number of students being present. There were fifteen new members elected, the largest fifteen new members elected, the largest number that has ever become members at one time. G. T. Blackstock, president, addressed the new members and then disappeared, saying that he did not think it advisable for him to stay while they were talking over the coming election of officers. There was quite a discussion as to the best ways and means of improving the society, and it was proposed to amend some of the bylaws, but the matter was laid over until next meeting. Next Saturday night the fun begins when the officers for the ensuing year will be nominated, and on the following Saturday the election will take place. will take place.

Breach of Newspaper Postal Law. A few days ago the postmaster general prohibited the Montreal Witness from sending out free of postage bundles of a paper called the War Cry to other newspapers which distributed them with their own sheets. He held that to do this was a contravention of the postal law. The Toronto Weekly News has been sending out a weekly in the same way and the attention of the postal authorities has been called thereto. The aim in both cases was to avoid the cost of mailing individual papers—to send them out in bundles to country weeklies who might do the mailing and distributing themselves. The saving in such a case would be twenty cents a year on each subscriber.

A hose Reel Driver Hurt Joe Knowlton, driver of the Wilton avenue hose reel, received injuries Saturday which may prove fatal. He hitched the horse to the reel and took it out for exercise. When he reached Brown's barber shop on Parliament street he got off the reel and went into the shop. As he was getting on the reel again a small boy threw a horse chestrut which struck the horse, causing it to run away. The driver was thrown under the wheels, which passed over him. He was carried to the hall where Dr. Ball attended him. The doctor says there are no bones broken, but as the poor fellow is suffering intense pain it is feared he is injured internally. He was slightly easier last night.
