

CANADIAN POEMS.

BY GEORGE E. MERKLEY.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE, August 7, 1873.

Sir Henry Ponsonby is commanded by the Queen to thank Mr. Geo. E. Merkley for his volume of Canadian Melodies, which he has sent for her acceptance.

KENSINGTON, PALACE, June 30, 1893.

My dear Mr. Merkley, allow me to thank you for your feeling verses and the kindness which has prompted their dedication,
Yours faithfully,

LORNE.

10 DOWNING ST., WHITE HALL, Sept. 29, 1893.

Sir:—Let me compliment you on this, your first attempt at literary work, which speaks fair for the future. I am your obedient servant,

H. SHAND.

GEORGE E. MERKLEY, Esq.,

W. E. GLADSTONE.

We beg to cheer and congratulate the author on his future way.—Guelph "Evening Mercury."

A writer whose work, though not pretentious, is bright and original, and will assuredly give pleasure to the reader.—Guelph "Daily Herald."

Sparkling gems, showing that the writer is at home on the slopes of Parnassus.—"Northern Advance."

The poet has feeling, imagination, taste, and many of his stanzas are excellent, both in form and sentiment.—"Orilla Packet."

The poet has enthusiasm, ambitious thought and expression, and these are excellent stock for a cultivated writer. Canadian national feeling is weak in its most excited hours, and he who strives to fan it into a healthy flame does a public service. Mr. Merkley has the true Canadian spirit, and his book will make him friends.—"British Whig."

The patronage of friends in America is respectfully solicited. Copies sent by mail on receipt of price, One Dollar.
