Epworth League Reading Course FOR 1902-1903

AIMS at providing pleasing and profitable instruction for our young people. It seeks to foster habits of home study, and is intended for busy people who have a little time for self-improvement. It offers a systematic course with a reasonable examination at the close for those who care to take it. The Reading Course is a substitute for aimless and haphazard reading, and as a number of persons read the same books at the same time, there is the benefit of having a common theme for conversation and discussion. The following three books have been selected:

- I. The Young People's Wesley. By Rev. W. McDonald, D.D. An interesting account of the life and work of the illustrious founder of Methodism.
- II. Nature's Miracles. By Elisha Gray. An attractive volume of popular science. Accurate and up-to-date.
- III. A Help for the Common Days. By Rev. J. E. Miller, D.D. Inspiring and helpful chapters on the spiritual life.

These books are equally suitable for young and old, and will be found instructive as well as entertaining. The price of these three volumes is $1.25. If sent by mail, 20 cents must be added for postage. Leagues and Reading Circles can order most economically by clubbing together and having the books sent by express.
