

lives in a rural area. As a result, the rural areas have more people than the urban areas. In addition, the rural areas have more land available for agriculture, which is a major source of income for many people in rural areas. The rural areas also have more natural resources, such as forests and minerals, which can be used for various purposes.

In conclusion, the rural areas of China have unique characteristics compared to the urban areas. These characteristics include a higher population density, a higher proportion of rural areas, a higher proportion of agricultural land, and a higher proportion of natural resources.

Q16. Which of the following is NOT a characteristic of rural areas in China?

- (A) High population density
- (B) Large proportion of agricultural land
- (C) High proportion of natural resources
- (D) High proportion of urban areas

Q17. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the population distribution in China?

- (A) The population density in rural areas is higher than in urban areas.
- (B) The population density in urban areas is higher than in rural areas.
- (C) The population density in both rural and urban areas is equal.
- (D) The population density in both rural and urban areas is low.

Q18. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the land use distribution in China?

- (A) The proportion of arable land is higher than the proportion of forest land.
- (B) The proportion of forest land is higher than the proportion of arable land.
- (C) The proportion of arable land is equal to the proportion of forest land.
- (D) The proportion of arable land is lower than the proportion of forest land.

Q19. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the natural resource distribution in China?

- (A) The proportion of mineral resources is higher than the proportion of forest resources.
- (B) The proportion of forest resources is higher than the proportion of mineral resources.
- (C) The proportion of mineral resources is equal to the proportion of forest resources.
- (D) The proportion of mineral resources is lower than the proportion of forest resources.

Q20. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the economic development in China?

- (A) The economy is primarily based on agriculture.
- (B) The economy is primarily based on industry.
- (C) The economy is primarily based on services.
- (D) The economy is primarily based on mining.

Q21. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the environmental impact in China?

- (A) The environmental impact is higher than the environmental impact of other countries.
- (B) The environmental impact is lower than the environmental impact of other countries.
- (C) The environmental impact is equal to the environmental impact of other countries.
- (D) The environmental impact is not mentioned in the chart.

Q22. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the social development in China?

- (A) The social development is primarily based on education.
- (B) The social development is primarily based on healthcare.
- (C) The social development is primarily based on infrastructure.
- (D) The social development is primarily based on culture.

Q23. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the political system in China?

- (A) The political system is primarily based on a single-party state.
- (B) The political system is primarily based on a multi-party state.
- (C) The political system is primarily based on a federal system.
- (D) The political system is primarily based on a constitutional monarchy.

Q24. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the cultural diversity in China?

- (A) The cultural diversity is higher than the cultural diversity of other countries.
- (B) The cultural diversity is lower than the cultural diversity of other countries.
- (C) The cultural diversity is equal to the cultural diversity of other countries.
- (D) The cultural diversity is not mentioned in the chart.

Q25. According to the chart, which of the following statements is true about the technological development in China?

- (A) The technological development is primarily based on manufacturing.
- (B) The technological development is primarily based on information technology.
- (C) The technological development is primarily based on agriculture.
- (D) The technological development is primarily based on energy production.