

from a combination of combine (who was under development at the Bureau of Government).

2. Monopole was the designation of the first of the two major intercity bureaus which the GAT established during the early 1920's. It was a large organization which had its headquarters in New York City, and it was responsible for the operation of the New York Central Railroad and the Pennsylvania Railroad. It also had its headquarters in New York City, and it was responsible for the operation of the New York Central Railroad and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Part III

Regulation

3. The telephone business became a part of the telephone company from 1911 until 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

4. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

5. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

6. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

7. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

8. Monopole was the designation of the first of the two major intercity bureaus which the GAT established during the early 1920's. It was a large organization which had its headquarters in New York City, and it was responsible for the operation of the New York Central Railroad and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Part IV

Regulation

9. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

10. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

11. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

12. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.

13. The telephone company became a part of the telephone company in 1921, when it was taken over by the telephone company.