

stay together and deal with the social services system. It serves as a bridge between native people and the system and between native culture and mainstream Canadian culture. Part of this bridging assists native people to conceptualize the Canadian legal system much of which has no equivalent in native experience.

RECOMMENDATION:

Justice Canada should continue to support the Native Courtworker Program and extend it to include members of other visible minorities.