

book, they found it would be necessary for them to have an Underwood typewriter and as the one they had was of a different make they rented a typewriter from the Underwood Company, but had the lease made out in the name of the Hygienic Ice Company, of which Baugh was the President. The tape being new on the machine, it was necessary to use it some time before it would copy letters dim enough to match the ones in the books. This took some time. It was then necessary to have the wording of the letters as near perfect, as regards the language used by the Colonel, as possible. Gariepy says they made a dozen copies before they got one that they regarded as satisfactory.

After the letters were all prepared the books were taken apart and the new letters inserted instead of the originals. They then took the books to a bookbinder named Murray and had them rebound. Now everything was in shape except the signature of Stimson to the letters. Finally Baugh found an old cheque with the Colonel's endorsement on the back. Gariepy traced this over with copying ink and after dampening this he transferred it to the letters.

Everything was now complete and again Gariepy came to Toronto and after registering at the Prince George Hotel as Henderson of Ottawa, he
