THE LONELY GUARD,

NORMAN INNES, Author of "The Surge of War" (London Magazine, English Week, 1907); "Penny Cents" (English Week, 1907).

(Continued.) His manner at once menacing and confident was not lost upon the sister. They stood expectantly, the younger half shielded by Inez von Rohn, while I waited spellbound in the deep recesses of the doorway in fear of what might follow. "It is in the matter of those pearls that once collared thy neck, fair cousin," continued the Count as his eyes rested for an instant on the Lady Elsa, whose head had sunk on her sister's shoulder. By every frown in the pit, I guessed to what shift his malice led him, and the sudden whiteness of the elder Countess told me I had guessed aright. Her voice was suave, his speech low— "Aye, Inez, the string of gems furnished with that old silver chain, the jewels you lost when Bavaria was first invaded. The pearls that to von Rohn have ever prized and which you would have again at all hazards. "Lost? They were robbed from us, from Rohn as thou knowest, Otto. Sobered she of the fear-stained cheeks. Her sister's laugh rang coldly. "Nay, I forgot not the jeweler in his greed, looking her kinsman in his greedy eyes. "Those that were robbed from another, with which thou didst steal from us again in thy greed and thy fear. "The man shrugged his shoulders as if he would ignore her thrust. "Peace, cousin, I can tell thee a richer tale. At the worst 'tis no very grave matter, the snatching of a string of pearls in the heat of such a fight as that, when they are stolen from one who can exact heavy vengeance for the crime. "Who? stammered the younger Countess, but the question died on her lips and the man ran on. "Who, sayest thou, cousin mine? He that was robbed, they tell me, is none other than His Highness the Grand Duke. "And the robber? "Wouldst thou hear his name, Inez von Rohn? "Silence hung in the Red Hall, deep silence broken only by a woman's sobbing. Then the elder Countess spoke, coldly, clearly, though her face was grey. "The robber did well," said she. "Von Wegens' lip curled, but his ill-humour, methought, grew less each moment. "Sayest thou so, cousin?" he drawled. "Aye," came the answer, "since he did my bidding." "And then the devil in the man blazed up in an instant, his long speen spleen and malice finding outlet at last in a peal of laughter, triumphant, discordant. "Then at thy bidding, and at the bidding of His Highness, Leon de Portugal will hang—no, he breathes of for a moment as he wiped his lips—"unless—" He had paused again, his features were set. I read the old anxiety, responsibility for my escape from my chamber; and then there he set a double guard upon the Red Hall, saying that it should be my disposal arrived from Salzburg or Munich. Not a word had he for me, not, but for the moment he faced me in the entrance and then he closed the door and the bolts shot home.

Suddenly it stopped and I stood dumb for amazement. (To be Continued.)

FLOATING LOAF LEADS TO BODY

Wonderful Way in Which Searchers Near Almonte Found a Corpse

Carlton Place, April 29.—A strange complication of an old method of discovering the location of drowned bodies was experienced here on Friday last, and is still the sole topic of conversation. It has been shown that a loaf of bread cast into the water will stop and sink where the body lies, but no one here can suggest the explanation. The facts are these: As soon as 15-year-old Lorne Thome was drowned on Thursday last men began a search for the body, but were unsuccessful that day. The search was continued on Friday, but in boats and along the river shore, but still without success. The father of the boy, Mr. Andrew Woods, daughter of Mr. Andrew Woods. The girl had lost a sister by drowning at Almonte a year ago, and then again on Friday heard old ways of locating a body described. On Friday afternoon she went to the house of the boy's father, Mr. Frank Thome, and asked for a loaf of bread, telling her purpose. There was not an unbroken loaf in the house and Mr. Thome sent the girl to a baker's shop for one. The loaf she took to the river and gave to two men, Messrs. T. Devlin and E. Kenney, who were taking part in the search. She told them to cast the loaf into the water and follow it until it stopped. This they did. The loaf of bread floated down stream while the little girl on shore kept and yanked the line circled six times and then sank. The men dropped the grappling irons. The body was found exactly underneath the spot where the loaf stopped, and was at once raised to the surface. The fact is undoubted, but it is a mystery to everyone.

CHANGES IN THE SCHOOLS

Some Important Matters Under Consideration By the School Trustees.

Some important changes and improvements are to be made in the city schools. The trustees have secured the leasehold of a lot in Spring street on the end of the Winter street school playground, and on the intention of the board to erect on this lot a two-story brick building containing four or six rooms which will be used as an annex to the main building. The trustees of the Leinster street United Baptist church have served notice on the board to vacate the rooms used in that building. Mr. Coll, chairman of the board, said that the board was paying more last night that the church and that than $800 a year. In his opinion there was likely to be strong opposition if the church authorities insisted on receiving more money their action would hasten the erection of a new building. The trustees of the school claim they are not receiving enough from the school for heating, as the price of coal is much greater than it was when the contract was made.

The reading circle of the Queen square Epworth League last night held a debate on woman suffrage. The affirmative won. Some well known local advocates of woman suffrage were present, including Mrs. Fiske, wife of the president of the local society. After the debate, Mrs. Fiske, addressing the meeting, said that probably a measure of this nature to give women the right vote.

SHOT HIS LITTLE SISTER'S HEAD OFF

A Six Year Old Boy Kills a Four Year Old Girl Near Sackville.

Sackville, N. B., April 29.—News has reached here of a terrible tragedy at Upper Rockport this afternoon, whereby the three-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tewer had the top of her head blown off through the discharge of a gun in the hands of her six-year old brother. Details are lacking, but it is understood that in the absence of his parents the boy took the gun from its place, and in some way discharged it, the charge striking his baby sister. The whole top of the girl's skull was blown off and she instantaneous. Coroner J. M. Baird will inquire into the accident.

TO WHOM WILL CANADA BELONG?

Interesting Question Asked in Circular Distributed Among Anglicans.

(Ottawa Journal.) "To whom will Canada belong at the close of the present century?" is the interesting question asked in a circular that has just been distributed among the Anglicans of Ottawa. What it says is interesting and the most important portion is given below: "When we remember that last year alone 212,000 settlers came to Canada, that the vast majority of these located on the western prairies, and that a large proportion are Englishmen and Anglicans, we are not surprised to find every western bishop appealing earnestly both for churchmen to open new missions, and for money for their maintenance. Four of the more populous dioceses report 87 vacant parishes, urgently requiring both churches and services. Saskatchewan alone built 37 churches in 1907, and placed 47 catechists in as many different centres in this diocese. In addition to the pressing claims of these settlers, there is the work to be done in the Indian and Eskimo, and MacKenzie River, as well as itinerant missions among the miners in the Yukon and in Columbia. It is hardly necessary for us to emphasize the tremendous importance of this work in our country. God has given us a great land to settle. A country not only vast in extent, but rich in almost every form of material resources. The development of this Dominion will unquestionably be the prominent feature of North American history. And in that connection the question naturally arises: 'To whom will Canada belong at its close?' The answer to this is determined by the maintenance of certain standards of national life, Canada will belong to Canadians, but if we fail, it will pass into the hands of those who are now drifting to our shores, some of whom are bringing with them low ideas of moral and intellectual life. It would therefore be a national calamity if the Canadian people were to surrender to the foreigner the territory for the Union. It is not simply the supremacy of the white race over the Mongolian, nor simply the protection of our industries from destructive competition, and our resources from foreign plundering. Canada for the Canadians means Canada, a land of pure and sanctified homes, a people of sterling character, a nation whose God is the Lord."

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS CUT OFF ELEVEN LICENSES

List of Those Whose Applications Have Been Granted.

The liquor license commissioners met last evening and went over the list of applicants for licenses and decided to strike out eleven of the applications in Kings, Prince and Queens wards and to grant licenses to the remainder. The total number of retail licenses issued is sixty-one and the Ottawa Hotel license is cancelled making the number of hotel licenses seven—the legal number—instead of eight, as heretofore. The licenses for wholesale, brews and clubs are the same as last year.

An interesting point has been raised regarding the three months' extension of time which it has been customary to give to dealers whose licenses are cancelled. It has been put forward that dealers who have been doing business in the wards which have exceeded the number allowed have no legal standing and that therefore no extension can be given to their licenses. The commissioners feel that they have full authority to extend to any person who has a license permission to continue for three months in order to dispose of the stock on hand. It has always been done in cases where the commissioners felt they were unable to renew the license. The point having been raised, however, the matter has been referred to the attorney-general and his decision will be awaited with interest. This affects all the ten who have been refused licenses. The following list gives details of all licenses which have been refused or granted for the ensuing year by the commissioners:

Important: I W R Women are as subject to kidney troubles as men, which fact is often overlooked. Many women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they will cause the other organs to become diseased. You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, bearing-down feelings, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so. But thousands of irritable, nervous, tired and broken-down women have restored their health and strength by the use of Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. Swamp-Root brings new life and activity to the kidneys, the cause of such troubles. Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy will do for them. Every reader of this paper, who has not already tried it, may address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and receive sample bottle free by mail. The Sault Ste. Marie canal has been opened for vessels.
