THE NATAL AFFAIR

The news from Natal today is important, but very meagre. The story is told on the first page of this issue. The Natal government had approved the sentence of death passed upon twelve natives who had shot two policement and the Trust encounters a relatively sharp competition; but the anthracite operators have cornered one of the necessities of life. Brushing aside legal fictions, we may also say that the same companies mine the trolled by half a dozen men, who, within of death passed upon twelve natives who had shot two policemen, and the Home Government had interfered and stayed the execution. The Natal government instantly resigned, but the members, at the request of the governor, retained office pending further communication with Lord Elgin. The statement accompanying their resignation said:—

"In view of the importance of the maintenance of the authority of the governor and the same companies mine the coal, earn the freight charges, and pay good dividends—partly, at least, on watered stock. The complications and interrelations of the coal business and the railway business make it hard for any one but a skilled accountant to understand the impressive statistics which the operators offer us. When Reading common stock, practically given away as a bonus in the reorganization of 1896, is quoted at Lackawama at 460, the consumers of an-

tenance of the authority of the govern-ment at the present critical juncture and the interference of the secretary of state with the decision of the executive council, which is reponsible to the colony, the ministers have been compelled instantly to resign. Some Interesting Facts About the St. John Creamery on King

Harvey Mitchell, dairy superintendent, was in the city today, testing composite samples of cream in the interest of the patrons of the St. John Creamery. Mr. Mitchell thinks much credit is due Mr. Bell, the proprietor, for the way in which he has developed the business, not only as being a distributing centre for a good, clean article in the dairy line, having manufactured the present year 38,000 pounds of butter, and sold 40,000 quarts—of cream, but also as being a source of revenue to butter, and sold 40,000 quarts of cream, but also as being a source of revenue to farmers, already paying them $14,000 a year for cream, which sum, Mr. Bell thinks, will be very much increased next year, judging from the expressions of estisfaction which he is receiving from those who have been sending cream, and the prospect of many new patrons.

Mr. Bell intends placing another new churn in the creamery. He is also extending the cold storage room and some other improvements, which, when completed, will make the St. John creamery one of the most, if not the most, up-to-date creamery in the province.

It may be interesting to the public to those where the cream comes from. Mr. sell has a farm at Titusville, a village in miles from Hampton on which he

There is no use disguising the fact that a coal strike is a serious thing, especially when it covers both the authracite and bituminous fields. A coal strike that should continue so long that all surplus supplies of fuel should be exhausted would paralyze the industries of the countries. The last strike in the anthracite field led to conditions that were so acute that the president of the United States felt justified to interfere in order not only to put an end to suffering, but to prevent threatened riot and bloodshed.

The strike which is now impending comto suffering, but to prevent threatened riot and bloodshed.

The strike which is now impending comprises both anthracite and bituminous miners, but there are certain considerations to be noted as making the situation less ominous than it would otherwise appear. In the first place the indications are that it would not cover the entire bituminous field for some of the operators have been willing to make concessions to the miners and if they shall now do so, Mr. Mitchell's policy is to penmit the miners receiving these concessions to continue work. Another favorable condition is the fact that as regards anthracite, the strike comes at a period of the year when the necessity for household supplies of coal is at a minimum, and there are supplies in existence sufficient to meet the consumptive demands for an indefinite time to come. Another favorable consideration is the prospect that the strike cannot continue to a point of fuel starvation and industrial prostration. The miners are now in a position where they do not command the public sympathy to the extent that they did during the last anthracite strike and public sympathy is a material source of strength.

There is still one other consideration that should be noted as being to the good of the situation. It is this: That the cestation of the mining means a cessation of the manner and to some extent a slackening of business, all of which should give some relief to the money market which has been suffering so long from an excess of prosperity. The way the stock market acts is an indication that Wall street does not view the situation with special alarm.
