

RESCUES BOY ON MATTRESS CRUISE

Dives from Bridge and Nearly Loses His Own Life.

Boston, May 12.—Diving from Dixie bridge to rescue a boy who had tumbled out on an old mattress into the South bay, Towerman John V. Murphy of the New Haven railroad became entangled in floating debris from the dump and, holding the boy above the surface, struggled for more than twenty-five minutes before three men in a rowboat rescued him and the lad.

Murphy and the boy, twelve-year-old William Clah, a negro, of a Fairweather street, South end, were taken in the police ambulance of the Athens street station to the City Hospital, where they were treated for immersion and exhaustion.

Blanket Makes Sail.
The boy was playing on the public dump near Dixie bridge, near the South bay tower of the Midland division of the New Haven, when he found an old mattress. He dragged it to the edge of the water, shipped a broomstick mast and spread a sail made from an old blanket, and set forth in quest of a land where the dumps are covered with gold and diamonds.

The current in that part of the bay was comparatively swift, and Willie was out about 100 yards from shore before his craft became water-logged and began to go down by the stern. The wireless apparatus had been carried overboard with the falling of the broomstick mast, but the boy's shouts were heard by Murphy, who was atop the tower at the bridge.

Murphy ran down the tower stairs and dived from the bridge. He swam swiftly toward the sinking mattress. He was still several feet from the boy when the wreck and the boy, who never had learned to swim, disappeared beneath the water. The towerman dived again and brought up the lad, who was clinging in a deathlike grip to his broomstick.

Towing Willie by the collar, Murphy was half way back to shore when he became entangled in refuse that had drifted from the dump. Rusty wires dangling from pieces of broken boxes clamped about his feet and dragged and tugged like some fearful octopus of the deep trying to pull him and the boy to their deaths. Holding the boy with one hand and with the other arm, Middle-aged Heiress Does Not Regret Choice — Happy Washing Dishes for Husband.

Detroit, May 12.—Florence Avery Barrigand, middle-aged spinster and daughter of John H. Avery, one of Detroit's oldest and wealthiest families, who gave up home, luxuries and social position to marry Francis Barrigand, gardener on the Avery estate, insisted that she had nothing to regret in the step she took.

Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Barrigand left their tiny three-room apartment, located over a store in River Rouge, and went for a walk through the squalid district in which they live and where the groom earns his daily bread. As the couple left, Mrs. Barrigand was asked by a dozen quarters, but the Barrigands have worse things to face than cameras, and they didn't mind.

Mrs. Barrigand wore a tailored blue serge, with walking shoes of excellent cut, a hand-made blouse, a sand-colored cape and a black and white sun hat. It is quite unlikely that anybody in River Rouge was aware of the fact that the suit bore a Piccadilly label, or that the shoes were hand-made, or that the cape was bought on Fifth avenue. She wore only two pieces of jewelry, her plain gold wedding ring and a gorgeous sapphire and diamond pin, which clasped the blouse at the throat. It was the only bit of splendor worn by the woman who had sacrificed wealth and social eminence to wash dishes for the man she says she loves.

Mrs. Barrigand says she likes her new life, and believes she always will. "Attempts have been made before to cure this agonizing disease, which may be described as cramp of the heart, by operation, and with some success," said a doctor to a Daily Mail reporter yesterday. "Dr. Jennings, a French surgeon, by excising a small portion of a nerve (the left cervical sympathetic nerve) completely cured a man who for years had been suffering from severe pain."

"The report does not indicate the nature of Professor Wenczelbach's operation. Although there are many theories we are quite in the dark as to what causes angina pectoris, from which women rarely suffer. It is most likely a disease of men of the better classes, and is particularly common among doctors and among Jews. Mental strain and worry predispose to it."

THREE MEN DROWNED ON THE NEPISIGUIT
A sad accident occurred on the Nepisiguit River yesterday when three men lost their lives while engaged on the log drive of the Bathurst Lumber Co., Ltd. They were Warren Chambers, a young man of East Bathurst; Leo Boucher and a man named Albert. The last two were married. The fatality occurred about fifteen miles above the Great Falls and about thirty-five miles from Bathurst. From reports received the boat, containing five men, turned turtle while going through the turbulent waters of what is known as the Chain of Rocks. Two of the men were rescued by Indian boatmen named Risk. None of the bodies was recovered up to last night.

RECENT DEATHS
John Jennings, of Newburg Junction, Carlton County, died at his home on May 4. He was a native of England, and came to this country in the seventies. He is survived by four sons, one of them being Francis L. Jennings, of the Sun Life Assurance Company, of St. John. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Mr. Rigby, of Woodstock, and interment was in Lower Brighton.

Minard's Lumbermen's Friend.
A vote of $860,000 for improvements to St. John harbor was passed in the House of Commons yesterday. Hon. J. B. M. Baxter and Dr. Murray MacLaren urged completion of the Negro Point breakwater. The sum of $860,000 of the amount voted is for completion of work at Courtney Bay. No provision for work on the breakwater was made, though the matter is receiving consideration.

ANGINA PECTORIS CURE REPORTED FROM VIENNA
London, April 10.—(By mail.)—General interest was created at a meeting of the Medical Congress in Vienna, says a London Daily Mail Exchange message, by a statement of Professor Wenczelbach on the treatment of angina pectoris. By an operation, he said, total relief could be obtained from its pain.

"Attempts have been made before to cure this agonizing disease, which may be described as cramp of the heart, by operation, and with some success," said a doctor to a Daily Mail reporter yesterday. "Dr. Jennings, a French surgeon, by excising a small portion of a nerve (the left cervical sympathetic nerve) completely cured a man who for years had been suffering from severe pain."

"The report does not indicate the nature of Professor Wenczelbach's operation. Although there are many theories we are quite in the dark as to what causes angina pectoris, from which women rarely suffer. It is most likely a disease of men of the better classes, and is particularly common among doctors and among Jews. Mental strain and worry predispose to it."

Over 700 people die in England every year from it, so it is not at all uncommon.

CALL OF ARMY IN FRANCE
CAUSE OF LABOR SHORTAGE
London, April 20.—(By mail.)—The death of labor in France, on the land as well as in various industrial centres, is making itself more and more felt, and is naturally accentuated by the retention with the colors of the 230,000 men of the 1921 class, according to the Paris correspondent of The London Daily News.

The Minister of Agriculture announced this morning that an arrangement has been made with the Prussian Government for the dispatch of agricultural laborers from Czechoslovakia to France, and a first batch, destined for the best industry, will arrive soon.

Recently an average of about 5,000 foreign workers have been coming into France every week, the very large majority being Italians, but in every part of the country, nevertheless, there is still a call for more labor—skilled and unskilled.
