WOULD LOAN DOMINION TREASURES OR ART.

Centralization of national art collections by loans of the surplus treasures to the big cities in the United Kingdom and the dominions was discussed at the annual meeting of the National Art Collection Fund at Burlington House. Sir Alfred Mond, British Minister of Health, said the London museums were overstocked and their cellars were full of treasures.

RECENT DEATHS

Mrs. R. W. McCarty.
Word was received in this city last evening of the sudden death yesterday in Toronto of Mrs. R. W. McCarty, formerly of this city. Mrs. McCarty, before her marriage, was Miss Maxwell, daughter of the late Henry Maxwell of St. John and was born here. She had many friends here and was a member of Centenary church. About twenty years ago she moved to Toronto with members of her family. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, three sons, five sisters and two brothers. The daughters are Miss Mary and Alice, both of Toronto, and the sons, D. C. of Toronto, W. H. of Hamilton (Ont.), and Ray Max McCarty, of St. John. The sisters are Mrs. Louis Lingley and Mrs. William Court of St. John; Mrs. Alice Burbridge of Winnipeg; Mrs. Berrie Hales and Mrs. Ella Narrows, both of Winnipeg, and the brothers, Samuel Maxwell, of St. John, and James Maxwell, of Fredericton.

Charles J. Cain.
Charles J. Cain, a well-known excavating contractor of this city, died yesterday at his home, 80 Richmond street. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Mary Cain, and one brother, William J., and one sister, Miss Rose Cain, both of this city. He was the son of the late William Cain, who carried on excavating work in the city for many years.

Captain H. A. Rowan.
The death of Captain Henry A. Rowan, well known among St. John sailing men and formerly a St. John man, occurred suddenly on Sunday at Weymouth, Mass. He leaves his wife, one brother and three sisters. The body will be brought to the city tomorrow for interment.

WOULD SELL HER HUSBAND'S TOMB

New York, June 6.—Mrs. Elizabeth Wiesen, of 683 Rhineland avenue, the Bronx, described as formerly a singer in the old Atlantic Gardens, and widow of a wealthy manufacturer, Henry Wiesen, made application before Justice Edward J. Gavenan in Bronx Supreme Court, for permission to sell her husband's mausoleum in Woodlawn cemetery, erected in 1901 at a cost of $25,000, declaring she was destitute.

McKeown and Flynn, of 529 Cortlandt avenue, the petitioners counsel, told Justice Gavenan that in 1901, when Mrs. Wiesen's husband died, he left in excess of $100,000, a proviso in his will stipulating that unless she erected the mausoleum his entire estate should go to the daughter of a friend. The estate dwindled away, the court was told, part of it going to the settlement of claims of relatives of the husband in Germany.

"For sentimental reasons, the old stage name of my client will not be divulged at this time," said William McKeown. "My client is destitute and she needs whatever she can retrieve from the sale of this mausoleum to secure a livelihood."

Frederic, Speer and Meyer, of 20 Exchange Place, counsel for the Woodlawn Cemetery, though not opposing the application, submitted an affidavit which read in part:

"The Woodlawn Cemetery does not oppose the application of the petitioner for permission to remove the remains of her husband and to sell the mausoleum, but, on the other hand, neither does it consent in view of the provisions of the will. The cemetery will be guided by the decision of the court."

HATED HIS EMPRESS.

Tragic History of Beautiful Elizabeth of Austria.

The marital sufferings of the Empress Elizabeth of Austria, consort of the late Francis Joseph, were prolonged and poignant. Joseph hated his wife from the moment, five weeks after their marriage, when she discovered his infidelities. Elizabeth said to a friend thirty years later: "Something snapped within me when I knew that my husband was not all that I thought he was, and I have never been the same since."

Francis Joseph did not adopt the brutal methods of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria when he wished to display his displeasure towards his wife. He was more refined, but none the less cruel. He insisted that she should observe the iron etiquette of the court, which decreed that she must give twenty-four hours' notice if she wanted to see her ladies.

Ultimately, on the advice of the court physician, he gave way a little. But even when the visit took place "it was not the case of happy little children welcoming their mother with cries of delight. What actually happened was quite different. First, the royal governess had the children dressed in stiff, ceremonial clothes, and then drilled in the way they were to receive their mother. On the appearance of the empress the tiny tots, who, under the Austrian system of education, had no chance to be human, simply bowed as though they were elderly courtiers. "No wonder Elizabeth refused to take part in the absurd ceremony more often than was absolutely necessary. It sickened her to think that she could not fondle her own babies, and that almost from the day their birth they were strangers to her."

Gradually Elizabeth avoided her husband, particularly after he tried to get her shut up in a lunatic asylum. Now and then she would stand by his side at a reception; but finally she left him to find consolation in travel. The curtain to this miserable royal domestic drama came down at Geneva on September 10, 1889. Elizabeth was walking along the quay leading to the landing stage at Geneva, where the steamer was awaiting her, when an anarchist named Luccheni sprang at her and drove a shoemaker's awl into her heart. The poor woman staggered, but managed to keep her feet, and only when she reached the steamer did she sit down. Then she asked, "What is it?"—the next moment she was dead.

MRS. McDONALD TO WED MARQUIS THIS SUMMER

Confirms Word of Her Engagement to Lord Huntley, Who is Seventy-five and Two Years a Widower.

Washington, June 6.—Mrs. Charlotte Jane Isabelle McDonald of Washington and Newport, widow of James McDonald, of Cincinnati, has confirmed a report from London as to her engagement to Charles Gordon, Marquis Huntley, former Lord Rector of Aberdeen University, who is an English peer and the premier Marquis of Scotland.

In reply to an inquiry Mrs. McDonald who is well known in Washington society said that the wedding would probably take place late this summer in London. She has given up her Washington residence at 2234 Massachusetts avenue, in the fashionable Sheridan Circle district. She will go to New York preparatory to sailing on June 10 for Paris to meet her son, Arthur Bradley Campbell, who served in the world war, and is private secretary to William Miller Collier, American Ambassador to Chile. It was while living in London some years ago that Mrs. McDonald became acquainted with the Marquis of Huntley. He was recently in Washington as the guest of Major Gen. H. K. Bethell, military attaché of the British Embassy, and it was while attending a dinner party that he and Mrs. McDonald met again. Mrs. McDonald's first husband was the late Arthur Campbell. She afterwards married James McDonald of the Standard Oil Company, from whom she inherited a fortune of about $1,400,000.

The Marquis of Huntley, who sits in the House of Lords as Baron Midrilton, was born at Orton Longueville, Peterborough, England, March 6, 1847, and is therefore seventy-five years old. He is the eldest son of the late tenth Marquis of Huntley, whose second wife was the oldest daughter of the Rev. P. W. Pegus, and he succeeded his father as Marquis of Huntley in 1869. In 1869 he was married to Amy, the eldest daughter of Sir William Cunliffe-Brooks. She died in 1920, so that the Marquis has been a widower about two years.

WOULD GRADE ALL COLLEGE APPLICANTS

Washington, June 6.—Dr. Carl E. Seashore, chairman of the division of anthropology and psychology of the National Research Council, in an interview said that a considerable percentage of young men and women who go to college should be discouraged from attending, for the reason that they are not strong enough, in some cases mentally and in other cases physically. From his experience as a dean he believes that applicants should be examined and graded before they are accepted.
