COMMON COUNCIL

A special session of the common council was held yesterday afternoon when they adopted the report of the harbor facilities committee with but one bor facilities committee with but one amendment.

The council placed the seal of its approval on the harbor commission scheme, although Ald, McGoldrick expressed himself as being opposed to it. The harbor facilities committee will prepare a bill dealing with the matter of a commission. This bill is to be submitted to the Common Council for approval and considerable discussion concerning it may be expected. The city on the acquirement by the Dominion government of the lot opposite the Customs House as a site for a drill half sto purhease a portion of the barrack grounds. Negotiations for the joint action of the city, the provincial government and the department of railways and canals for the repair and maintenance of the Marsh Bridge are to be reopened. The agitation for the extension of the breakwater is to be dropped and the acquiring of the Beacon bar and the arrangement of charges for shunting cars are to be left to the commission. The boring to ascertain the nature of the Courtenay Bay bottom are to be proceeded with as soon as the provincial government and the Dominion government consent to each pay a third of the $10,000 to be expended. THE METHODS OF THE MODERN SLAVE TRADER Gudgels a Driver With Her Parasol When ous, skilful, thorough workmanship, and their sweet and powerful tone and their sweet and powerful tone of these reliable.

It is one of the delusions of modern civilization that slavery does not exist. But there are in the world doday thousands of black slaves laboring under the most hideous form of forced labor, which is only accentuated by the absurd attempts to make them officially free by means of legal documents couched in phraseology the negroes cannot possibly understant.

A typical slave-traders' country is said to exist in the Portuguese colony There are immense cocca plantations or the southwest coast of Africa. In the Portuguese islands of San Thome and Principe, and to obtain laborers for them there is a group of dealers who make a specialty of providing negroes.

IRONY OF TRAFFIC.

These men organize special parties who explore the interior of African forests and seize hundreds of unfortunate slaves who are immediately driven back to the coast in a manacled condition. Whole families are captured and sold in lots, according to physical condition and age.

The trade is, of course, the most profits of good slaves fetch tempting prices, and after the hundred in the world, for good slaves fetch tempting prices, and after the hundred in the world, for good slaves fetch tempting prices, and after the hundred in the world, for good slaves fetch tempting prices, and after the hundred of the agent thousands of the tempting prices, and after the hundred in the world, for good slaves rether the hundred of the agent than after the hundred in the world, for good slaves rether the hundred and so wing after the tunnan chattel is dispored of the agent than after the hundred is dispored of the agent than a not prices, and after the hundred in the world, for good slaves are complete agent than chattel is dispored of the agent than after the hundred in the world, for good slaves are complete and rether than career. It costs very little to sectre the vice and and and sold in lots, according to physical condition. and sold in lots, according to physical condition and age.

The irony of the whole traffic is that everything is done on a legal basis. There is a special government agent at Angola, whose duty it is to prevent the exploitation of slaves. He, of course, will not admit that slavery exists. The system is too perfect, But the negroes think otherwise. Their fate is one of lifelong hard labor though they are engaged as laborers, on the plantation for a certain number of years at what appears to be a reasonable wage. This wage it is alleged is never paid, and the "legal slave" knows that he will never get it.

WRETCHED SLAVES.

At the point of the sword he signs an agreement he cannot read engaging himself body and soul to the traders. Once on the island he never leaves, for at the end of his period of five or seven years the farce of signing on is again gone through, and so on until he is too old, when he is sent back to his primeval dwelling not a cent the richer for his life of labor. It is very seldom indeed that any of these slaves live to old age. Five years is generally enough for the strongest constitution. To avoid the paying of wages a system of fines is introduced by which the worker cannot possibly escape losing his nominal wage. Floggings are of course everyday occurrences, women ing his nominal wage. Floggings are of course everyday occurrences, women suffering as well as men. They live in huts when not engaged in the fields and even if the wretched creatures could escape their guards they would be utterly unable to leave the island. Thus the geographical position saves the owners thousands of dollars.

INTERNATIONAL PROTEST.

King Leopold derives nearly $5,000, 000 each year from his Congo property and most of this huge sum is, according to missionaries and others, made out of the blood and tears of helpless slaves who are forced to bring in so much rubber each month to the Belgian monarch's agents. The same farce of so-called voluntary signing on is gone through here, and, of course, a certain price is paid for rubber, but the dealers are anything but extravagant when treating with natives.

Not to put too fine a point on it, the valuable product is obtained for next to nothing by King Lepold's representatives, and the natives require persuasion to induce them to find the rubber for the white man. It is this "persuasion" which has led to the international protest against the Congo at TEHERAN, June 18.—Deputation of members of the Assembly went today to present a written address to the Shah on the subject of the nation's complaints of the violation of the constitutional security in future.

The Shah did not receive the deputation, stating as an excuse that he was unwell, but he will receive it tomorrow. The pressing demands have rekindled the Shah's wrath. Three now arrests were made today and the Shah's guards are daily being reinforced.

It was the fault of the driver and not of the driver and not of the horse. Then some man passing by cried out, 'Horses and women are all better for being beaten.' Very well,' I retorted, 'only I prefer that the one to be beaten shall be I and not a dumb brute unable to defend itself.' "

Asked what her plans are for the future, Mme. Eames said:—

"I have engaged myself for the season at the Metropolitan Opera House, but I am only going to appear in the pick of my best roles and only in a limited number of performances.

Though the news that the high priests had announced that they might excommunicate the Shah has circulated among the people, I hear that very little importance is attached to it. On the contrary, many sympathize with the Shah. Many things which formerly would have been inconceivable are possible today in Persia. No doubt the vast majority of the Shah's aubjects are on his side, as they are tired of the continual state of disturbance.

The bazaars are closed today, but the Shah has issued a proclamation for them to open tomorrow. The government will guarantee to keep order in the town, and those who disobey the order are to suffer the consequences.
