

DEDICATION

Intellectual growth, which is the essence of university endeavor, in the dimensions of both expansion and intensification, finds a fitting parallel in the expansion of university facilities and the intensification of the curricular and extracurricular life of the Regina Campus of the University of Saskatchewan. The Regina campus student body is among the fastest growing in Canada. Our faculty too has grown, adding new scope to the curriculum. The Student Representative Council has suggested changes in its structure to make its guidance of student activities more effective. Plans for a new campus, undertaken by the University Board of Governors, the Senate, and the world-renowned architect, Minoru Yamasaki, anticipate a student body of five thousand within the next twenty-five years. Because the aim of this yearbook is to reflect life on Regina Campus, and because we students sense a growing around us and within us, we dedicate this book to GROWTH..
